The South's Education

Apparent determination of four or five Southern states to abolish their public schools in the segregation controversy is the more incredible if one reviews the South's long struggle to have education.

As the 20th Century began in 1900, Southern education suffered from a greater lag than any other public institution in the region.

The report of the U.S. commissioner on education for the year 1900-1901 showed Southern schools to be wholly inadequate, poorly attended and poorly taught.

The amount spent on public education was about a third of the national average. Then, as now, there was a greater proportion of children to adults than in the North. In addition to this, about 80 per cent of the Southern population was rural and sparsely settled. School terms were confined to a few winter months.

In 1901 Charles W. Dabney of the University of Tennessee, said:

"In the Southern states, in schoolhouses costing an average of $276 each, under teachers receiving the average salary of $25 a month, we are giving the children in actual attendance five cents' worth of education a day for 87 days only in the year—such means will never educate the people."

Examples

In 1900-1901, for example, Alabama's Legislature gave the University a mere $10,000. Until 1904 Louisiana had a limit of $15,000 on annual appropriations for Louisiana State University. The total yearly income for the 63 colleges and universities of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas was $65,843. This was less than that of one of the major Eastern universities.

We know, looking at history, that the damage done by the Civil War in property losses was great. The poverty which followed was harsh, often brutal. But the greatest damage done the spirit and soul of the South grew out of the lack of education. The children, the grandchildren and the great-grandchildren of the adults of those postwar years did not have a fair chance.

By 1901 the situation was so desperately hopeless that it attracted the attention of Northern philanthropists. George Foster Peabody was first to help. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his father poured $53 millions into their General Education Board between 1902 and 1909 to help the South toward education.

The crusade for public schools was preached at barbecues, picnics, in churches, courthouses, schools, fairs, and camp meetings. There was opposition. Some persons of influence and intelligence did not believe in free public education. Others did not want the Negro to have it.

Poverty

Poverty lay heavily on the South. But nowhere was it as burdensome as on the farms—especially the many small ones. The wan man in the faded denim, his sun-bonneted wife, and his pinched but eager children had already shown their resentment in the Populist revolution. Injustice made what bread they had more bitter.

Walter Hines Page described them in a great speech for free education as "the forgotten man."

Education was the paramount need. Without it neither industry nor agriculture could grow. Without it, the best of the young people would continue to go north.

By 1913 a certain momentum was attained. Standards of admission and graduation, which were widely debased, were tightened. Public education came to the South.

It began to be seen that education was necessary, too, for the growth of spirit and life itself.

In these 58 years education in the South has come a long hard path. Teachers and parents have sacrificed and toiled for it. The despair of the first years of the century are but memories for the old, or stories to be read in books.

Now, in the last half of the 20th Century, can it really be true that the political leadership of four or five Southern states is going to close the door to the future in the face of another generation of children?

Norfolk Vote Backs School Closing, 3-2

By GENE ROBERTS
Norfolk Virginian-Pilot Staff Writer
Special To The Constitution

NORFOLK—Norfolk voters clung to Virginia's plan for massive resistance against integration by a three-to-two margin in a "straw vote" here Tuesday.

Unofficial tabulations showed 12,340 votes against petitioning Gov. J. Lindsay Almond to return six state closed schools to city control for operation on an integrated basis. Voting for petitioning the governor were 8,712.

The victory for the massive resistance forces was almost identical to that gained in Norfolk by Sen. Byrd in the Nov. 4 general election.

BYRD MARGIN

Politicians saw the Byrd margin over independent candidate Louise Wensel as a prelude to Tuesday's massive resistance win. Byrd is known as the architect of Virginia's resistance to integration program.

The "straw vote" set up here by the city council will not be legally binding. Mayor W. Fred Duckworth said, however, that the results of the vote will serve as a guide in future council actions.

Advocates for a hasty reopening of the schools say the referendum solves nothing. The Norfolk Committee for Public Schools had argued since the inception of the referendum that it was "rigged."

INSTRUCTED VOTERS

The committee based its claims on a message at the bottom of the ballot labeled "For Information Only." The message instructed voters that should the schools be returned, state funds would be withheld and "substantial tuition fees" would be charged for each child to make up the deficit.

The committee argued that many could not afford to pay a "substantial tuition fee," and thus would vote against petitioning the governor for that reason alone.

Defenders of State Sovereignity and Individual Liberties, a statewide organization dedicated to segregation, who led a campaign for an "against" vote, are claiming the vote as an indication of strong support for massive resistance. Their claims are being denied by the Norfolk Committee for Public Schools.

Privately, the committee has said that a "for" vote was doomed from the start because of this state's "restrictive election laws." They point out that to have been eligible to vote in the referendum,

U.S. Spies Fill Berlin, Soviet Says

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP)—The Soviet Union Tuesday stepped up the campaign to get the Allies out of West Berlin. The Soviets accused the United States of using the isolated, old German capital as a spy center.

The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin summoned its first news conference in four years to assert that West Berlin is a hotbed of anti-Soviet espionage.

The charges came on the heels of a warning in Moscow by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, that the Soviet Union will end the four-power occupation of Berlin—with or without Western consent.

In the past week, the Soviet Union has repeatedly claimed the Allies have violated the spirit of occupation agreements and should get out of West Berlin, an island inside Soviet-run East Germany.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said last week the Soviets are giving up their occupation rights in East Berlin and advised the Allies to do the same.

The idea was developed Tues-

'Broken in Half,' Vessel Radios

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (UPI) — A 615-foot cargo ship radioed late Tuesday it was breaking in half in gale-swept northern Lake Michigan and the ship apparently went down with all 36 crewmen.

The Carl D. Bradley, a limestone carrier bound from lower Lake Michigan to Rogers City, Mich., on Lake Huron, broadcast the international distress signal at 5:50 p.m. (EST).

"We've broken in half. We're going down," was the last word from Capt. Roland Bryan of the Bradley.

FREIGHTERS INVESTIGATE

Hours after the abandon - ship call was received, two freighters at the reported location of the Bradley found evidence that the ship had gone down, but no survivors.

Coast Guard headquarters at Cleveland and stations along the Great Lakes said although all indications were the vessel sank, they had not definitely confirmed the disaster.

The German motor ship Satori was the first rescue vessel to reach the scene. An hour and a half after the Satori started its searchlight search over the choppy waters, the Robert C. Stanley steamed into the area.

A twin-engine Grumman Albatross seaplane from the Coast Guard station at Traverse City made two flights to the area with loads of flares but had found no further trace of the ship.

DROPS FLARES

On the second flight, the plane radioed the Satori and during its entire run with the second load of flares, the plane dropped the flares directly in front of the Satori.

At one point, the pilot of the plane said the winds must be blowing "90 knots," which a Coast Guard spokesman indicated was roughly 100 miles an hour.

School Law To Block Overall Ruling Urged; Russell Asks No Retreat

Constitution State News Service

ALBANY—Sen. Russell slapped what he called the Georgia "surrender group" on the segregation issue here Tuesday and promised that he would "never become a spokesman for these apostles as long as I have the strength to oppose them."

Russell ridiculed those in Georgia who, he said, advocate "a little" integration.

"If you do this, it will not be long until all the doors are open to the integration flood," he said.

The senator told Georgia Farm Bureau delegates there are strong forces at work in Georgia to convince the people they should surrender.

YET TO HIT COURT

"These apostles claim all of our state laws to preserve segregation are unconstitutional. I don't know why they claim this, however, because they haven't even reached Mr. Warren's court yet," he added.

He told his audience "we stand a much better chance of defending segregation by supporting the segregation forces in the state, because they are the ones who will continue to come up with new ideas and plans. The surrender group certainly will not," he continued.

He asserted "this surrender talk is not going to help us in our fight in Washington to get a state's rights bill passed."

Interrupted by applause several times during his talk, Russell told the group that the fight to "preserve the white race in Georgia" hasn't even started yet.

"The fight has been carried on by Arkansas and other states up to now," he declared.

VANDIVER SPEAKS

Tuesday night, Gov.-elect. Ernest Vandiver promised members of the Farm Bureau that the state will do all it can to bring new payrolls to areas losing farm population.

"Such added industrial growth goes hand-in-hand with sound agriculture in that it affords part-time job opportunities and its payrolls stimulate bigger markets for farm products," he declared.

Vandiver noted that the number of Georgia farms has dropped 25 per cent in the past eight years and commented:

"Policies of the present national administration have done

Smith Vows Bill On School Option

By MARION GAINES

Fulton County Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith Tuesday night said he will introduce in the next General Assembly a "local option bill" permitting each school district to vote on "public schools or no public schools."

Addressing more than 300 persons at a PTA meeting at Atlanta's Spring Street School, Smith declared unequivocally, "I am for public schools."

Hundreds of automobile windshield stickers were passed out by Rep. Smith after the session. The stickers proclaimed:

"We Want Public Schools."

Rep. Smith also called for "repeal of any of the laws now on the statute books that would force the governor to close the schools" in the event a school desegregation order is handed down by federal courts. He said:

I propose that the people in each independent and/or county school system or district be allowed to vote on this simple proposition:

"We want public schools—or—we do not want public schools."

Mayor Hartsfield, who attended the meeting, applauded Smith for "a fine and courageous speech. I thoroughly agree with him."

Board Calls Present Plan Vulnerable

The State Board of Education acted Tuesday to head off the possibility that one lawsuit against it might serve to desegregate the state public school system as a whole.

And the board heard Chairman George P. Whitman Jr. of College Park demand that the Legislature be told how much money is needed to operate schools "regardless of anyone's campaign promise."

ACTION REQUESTED

Robert H. Hall, assistant attorney general assigned to the education department, raised the possibility of one suit against the state board desegregating the entire state.

The board accepted his suggestion and requested that the 1959 Legislature create a School Law Study Committee to revise Georgia school laws.

In a memorandum to State Supt. Claude Purcell, Hall said the Minimum Foundation Act of 1949 is Georgia's basic school law, but many other code sections go back to 1919 and often are in conflict.

CODE CITED

"Certain code sections apply to both county and city school districts," Hall said. "Others are limited to county districts. The line of authority between the State Board of Education and the local boards of education is often very hazy. Apparent conflicts need to be clarified.

"This is especially true with regard to reaffirming the local autonomy of county and city

Oxford to Be Vandiver's Tax Chief

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Vandiver announced appointment of Oxford, a 44-year-old Dawson businessman and former Highway Board chairman, Tuesday morning.

It is considered one of the top jobs in state government. Under present Commissioner T. V. Williams it has also been one of the most controversial.

In announcing his choice, Vandiver said Oxford "has only one general order from me, and that is to clean house where necessary, constitute a competent staff, enforce and respect the law and apply it equally to every citizen."

In accepting the position, Oxford called on newsmen to call any irregularities to his attention.

"Every record over there (other than those closed by law) will be a public record," he promised.

Virginia at Crossroads On Massive Resistance

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The Commonwealth of Virginia is heading this week for a showdown test on the constitutionality of its "massive resistance" laws aimed at preventing integration in the state's schools.

A three-judge federal court, sitting at Norfolk Wednesday, will begin hearing a suit brought by parents of white children challenging the validity of Virginia law that has closed six schools in that city and three others in Front Royal and Charlottesville.

The prospect is that the "massive resistance" school-closing law will be knocked down by federal judges who already have shown hostility, in case after case, to Virginia's efforts to preserve segregation.

Apparently there is no optimism among Virginia segregationist leaders that the state law can survive.

Therefore, two influential Virginia newspaper editors, originally supporters of "massive resistance," have called for a shift in strategy to preserve segregated schools.

In addition, Gov. Lindsay Almond, who was elected on a "massive resistance" platform, seems to recognize the inevitability of its failure. He has announced he will appoint a legislative commission to draft a new policy if the present anti-integration laws are struck down.

Two factors seem to be influencing men like Almond, Dabney and Kilpatrick in their change of thinking and in their reappraisal of "massive resistance."

One, of course, is the prospect that the Virginia laws will be slapped down, in the light of the rulings by lower courts and the

Mercury Slips Back Into 50s With Rains Due

Occasional rain and cooler temperatures are expected in Atlanta Wednesday and Wednesday night, the Weather Bureau said.

Thursday it will be partly cloudy and continued cool, with no rain foreseen.

Wednesday's temperature extremes are expected to be 60 and 54. Thursday's range should be from 40 to 58.

The high thermometer reading in Atlanta Tuesday was another record-breaker — 79.1. The previous high for a Nov. 18 was an even 79 in 1938. Low here Tuesday was 58.

Gomez, who denied any part in a move to unseat Frondizi, said his resignation was irrevocable.

'Overtake U.S.' Is Slogan Of Soviet Industry Drive

"The biggest revolution that has occurred in Russia in our lifetime is the industrial revolution," says Adlai Stevenson in this report on the amazing growth of Soviet industry. This is the seventh of a series of articles about Governor Stevenson's wide-ranging travels in Russia.

The Russia I saw this summer was not the backward peasant nation I saw there 32 years ago. The peasant, the moujik, has been sent to school, put on a tractor or set to work in mines and factories. He is a moujik no longer. The biggest revolution that has occurred in Russia in our lifetime is the industrial revolution.

"Overtake America" is its slogan. You see it on huge red signs in factory yards, even on posters in children's playgrounds. The concentration on development and production is something to behold. By "overtaking" America they mean matching America in per capita production. Mr. Khrushchev's seven-year economic plan, just announced, promises the Russians the highest living standard in the world by 1970 or before.

But Rusia is still a land of sharp and vivid contrasts. You cruise luxuriously down to central Asia at 500 miles per hour on great jet airliners that have been standard equipment for two years, and there, in Samarkand, bearded old men on donkeys are sauntering along the dusty road like pictures out of the Bible.

In Tashkent, the capital of Uzbekistan, Navoi street is broad and busy and lined on one side with huge forbidding modern buildings, and on the other is the "old city," a labyrinth of winding little alleys and mud-brick Oriental hovels unchanged for centuries. Here and there in trellised tea gardens Uzbek men squat on raised platforms, sip their tea and quietly chat as they have done also for centuries.

Traveling on a comfortable old sidewheeler up the Volga from Kazan to Gorky, we docked at dilapidated wooden river towns. On the banks

Bomb Suspects Ask Court Bar Removal for Quizzing

Attorneys for five men charged with dynamiting the Jewish Temple sought Tuesday to enjoin Atlanta police and Fulton County Sheriff T. Ralph Grimes in DeKalb County Superior Court from taking them out if Fulton Tower for questioning.

DeKalb Judge Frank Guess signed an order requiring Atlanta Police Chief Herbert Jenkins, three city detectives and Sheriff Grimes to appear before him at 10 a.m. Nov. 24 to show why the injunction should not be granted.

The move brought an immediate reaction from Sheriff Grimes, who said that a Superior Court judge in another county has "no authority or jurisdiction" over the operation of the Fulton County jail.

Sheriff Grimes refused to acknowledge service from DeKalb County of the petition presented his office by Essley Burdine, one of two attorneys for the five defendants.

The sheriff added that the question of the show cause hearing was moot, anyway, because he has "given an order" that the defendants would not be taken out of the Fulton Jail "without a court order."

Earlier, Burdine sought to have Fulton Coroner Thomas E. Compton serve Sheriff Grimes with a copy of the petition. The coroner, who is the only county officer who can legally serve the sheriff, had left his office for the day, however.

Burdine had appeared in court Tuesday morning before Fulton Superior Judge Durwood T. Pye, who is tentatively scheduled to try the case Dec. 1, and asked that he rule on the question of whether the men could be moved from the jail.

Judge Pye advised the attorney that the matter was one "that addresses itself to the sheriff, not to this court." The judge added that he could not rule on the matter because he had nothing before him on it. Burdine told the judge he would file something so he could get a ruling.

Burdine and attorney James R. Venable said they filed the matter in DeKalb County because the three principal city investigative officers in the case reside in that county. They were named as Det. Capt. R. E. Little Jr., Det. Sgt. M. W. Blackwell and Det. John F. Inman.

Sheriff Grimes was named defendant because he has supervision over the prisoners in the Fulton jail. Jenkins was listed as defendant because the detectives are under his supervision.

Soviets Give Ground On Space Controls

By LINDSAY PARROTT

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., — The Soviet Union made a new approach Tuesday to international control of outer space, waiving the abolition of U.S. bases on foreign territory as a condition.

Valerian A. Zorin, Soviety deputy foreign misiter, laid the new proposal before the General Assembly's political committee.

In exchange for the earlier Soviet demand that U.S. bases be removed from foreign soil, he suggested that the United Nations set up a preparatiry commission to study the entire question of cosmic space. The group he suggested should have a majority of the Soviet bloc plus "uncommitted" nations, some of the friendly to the Soviet Union.

MADE PROPOSAL

Zorin made his proposal formally Tuesda afternoon before the 81-nation committee. Previously, however, it was learned, he had shown the draft to Henry Cabot Lodge, head of the U.S. delegation. He also explained the new Soviet move to a news conference.

The immediate reaction from the West was not unfavorable. A U.S. spokesman said that the new Soviet proposal was under study by the U.S. delegation. It was made known also that the draft had been sent to Washington for consideration.

Lodge called the Soviet approach an indication that "the Soviet Union may now be willing to cooperate in some useful endeavor" to confine the use of cosmic space to peaceful purposes. He called Zorin's move "a welcome response to the U.S. initiative."

OWN RESOLUTION

The U.S., some time ago, showed the Soviet delegation here the text of its own resolution calling for the peaceful use of space and seeking a U.N. committee to study the subject. There was no response from the Soviet Union then.

The United States had proposed only that the United Nations establish a committee to study what could be done about outer space.

Specifically, the Soviet draft resolution would have the General Assembly turn over the question of cosmic space to a preparatory group, which would be empowered to lay down the program and "rules" for a later international commission. In his address to the political committee, Zorin described the document that the group should draw up as a "charter," which the commission would later follow.

The preparatory group, he suggested, should consist of the three large nuclear powers, the Soviet Union, the U.S., and Britain. To these, he proposed, should be added the members of the Soviet bloc, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

NON-NUCLEAR

He suggested as "non-nuclear" Western members Sweden and Argentina.

France, India and the United Arab Republic, he suggested, would be the other members of the group.

Zorin, at his press conference and later before the political committee, made clear that the Soviet Union would not insist on a specific composition of the preparatory group or of the subsequent outer space commission. The membership, he said, could be "subject to negotiation." The preparatory group, he added, should report its findings to next year's session of the General Assembly.

Zorin presented the new proposal as a "tangible step forward" toward the international control of outer space, which many nations here have sought. He called it also a "genuinely acceptable" move, which the political committee and the General Assembly might well accept unanimously.

West Offers To Modify Atom Curb

Still Not Enough, Soviets Indicate

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

GENEVA — The United States and the United Kingdom Tuesday offered to compromise with the Soviet Union on the central issue deadlocking the conference on cessation of nuclear tests.

Ambassador James J. Wadsworth and Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore said the western powers would drop their insistence upon discussion of a single draft treaty on test cessation which would include an effective control system.

Instead, they offered to discuss an agreement or agreements on cessation and a control system. A treaty banning tests and a control system to police this ban should be discussed and agreed on concurrently, the Western powers suggested.

This offer, in the Western view, went some distance toward meeting the demand of Semyon K. Tsarapkin, chief Soviet delegate, for separate discussions of a draft treaty and controls.

Initial Soviet reaction to the offer was that the West had not gone far enough. Western diplomats found the Russians hostile to concurrent discussion of controls and a treaty and suspicious of any strong link between a treat on a ban and a control system.

The Western offer was put forward at an informal meeting in the Palace of Nations this afternoon. Superficially, it is a move to reconcile differing views on the agenda. Actually, one American said, the offer concerned the "guts" of the conference since it deals with the "willingness of the Soviet Union to accept either a built-in control system or a solid tie between cessation and an effective control system."

Strong indications from the Soviet delegation that it will not accept the Western type of agenda moved some American and British diplomats to suggest it might be possible to proceed without an agenda, and pass on to concurrent discussion of a draft treaty and a control system.

This at least would move the conference out of its present stalemate. If the Russians fail to respond.

U.S. Jetliner Outraces British Across Ocean

The American plane passed the British ship more than five miles in the air 100 miles east of Boston, then swooped out of a thick mist and landed at Idlewild Airport 11 minutes in advance of its rival.

Officially, there was no race—at least the airlines and the pilots so maintained. The American and British pilots echoed one another when they landed, saying:

"It was just a routine flight."

However, it was the first opportunity since the recent inauguration of transatlantic jet travel to judge ship to ship the American-built Boeing 707 airliner flown by Pan American World Airways and the British Overseas Airways Corp.'s Comet IV.

The smaller British plane, with 33 passengers and a crew of 10, took off from London at 5:34 a. m. The Pan Am took off 36 minutes later, with 97 passengers and a crew of 16.

The American plane gained 27 minutes in the Atlantic crossing before both planes landed at Gander, Nfld.

The Comet then beat the Boeing out of Gander by 15 minutes, only to be overtaken en route to New York.

The American plane landed at Idlewild at 3:19 p. m., 34 minutes behind schedule. It was 3:30 p.m. when the British plane landed, but it was 15 minutes ahead of its schedule.

The flying time for the Pan Am was 7 hours and 27 minutes, or 53 minutes better than the BOAC plane's 8 hours and 20 minutes.

It was Pan American's second London-New York flight since its jet service was inaugurated. BOAC started its daily jet service between London and New York last Friday.

Rise in Lung Cancer Cases Attributed to Car Exhausts

A nationwide conference on the problem, called by the U. S. Public Health Service, heard also from one physician that pollutants from auto and truck exhausts are as much responsible for the rising incidence of lung cancer as cigarettes.

This speaker, Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, assistant dean of the college of medicine at Ohio State University, said Soviet public health officials are among those who have found that lung cancer increases with growing street and highway traffic.

"When are the auto and truck manufacturers going to turn from the foolishness of whims, from silly style whims, from oversized models and from too much horsepower, to the essential but tough job of controlling exhausts?" Leake asked.

However, Dr. James P. Dixon, health commissioner in Philadelphia, offered a cautionary note to the 800 industry and government experts. He said that a cause and effect relationship between lung cancer and air pollution had not been verified. It is clear, however, that such cancer strikes at a higher rate in cities than rural areas, Dixon added.

Dr. Leroy E. Burney, the U. S. surgeon general, said many scientists felt air contamination has not been proved to be a cause of cancer. But he said the weight of the circumstantial evidence points that way, adding that to wait for final proof in health protection work is to invite disaster.

Closing of Schools Opposed by Melton

GRIFFIN, Ga. (UPI)—Quimby Melton Jr., a Georgia editor-legislator who has a long record as a rock-ribbed segregationist, said Tuesday the state should reassess its die-hard position on public school integration.

Quimby Melton Jr.

Georgia is expected to come face to face with federal court decisions on public school integration in Atlanta within the next year. State laws now require the closing of any public school that is integrated.

"The dire consequences of shutting down the public school system of Georgia are as unthinkable in my mind as the mixing of the races in the classrooms of Georgia," Melton told members of the Griffin Exchange Club.

Melton, editor of the Griffin Daily News, was appointed to the State Board of Regents by Gov. Marvin Griffin and is a close friend and supporter of Sen. Herman Talmadge. He was elected to the legislative term starting in January.

Melton said he did not advocate surrender on the integration issue.

"I do advocate a sane and sensible reappraisal of our position which is becoming less tenable day by day and almost hour by hour," he said.

The editor recalled that his newspaper had been outspoken in opposition to the Supreme Court's 1954 school integration decision and that he personally had a known record as a staunch segregationist.

He called himself such a "rock-ribbed conservative in my views on government" that he would regard being called a moderate "an insult."

"But I am opposed to the surrender of the public school system of Georgia under any circumstances unless something equally good and offering equal opportunities to all our children is offered as a substitute," he said.

College Park Council Approves Renewal and Thoroughfare Plan

By ALAN GILLON

The College Park City Council Tuesday night adopted the preliminary plan of improvement and thoroughfare plan report as recommended by the City Planning Commission.

Included in the council's actions was the initial survey of land use and possible ways of working major thoroughfares into the Georgia Highway Department plans for roads leading around Atlanta and the Airport Access Highway.

The council also passed a proposal to present to the Fulton County Bond Commission plans for a proposed underpass to be constructed between the intersection of College avenue and Main street, for their study and approval.

STUDY STAGE

Application was ordered by the council for federal funds to be used in the prelimiary study stage of an urban renewal project in a section roughly bounded by Virginia avenue on the north, Georgia avenue on the south, Harvard road on the west and Main street on the east.

Council was told by Community Planner Richard M. Forbes that the proposed thoroughfare plan would result in increased land value, quieter neighborhoods and containment of blight areas.

Councilmen praised the Planning Commission and Chairman W. J. Holland for its work in drawing up the preliminary studies, and unanimously approved measures relating to the projects.

375 AREAS

The urban renewal project will extend over a possible 375 areas of the present Negro section of the city. A study of a section of the area showed 72 per cent of housing as substandard.

In addition to the plan for the Main street underpass a proposal for a limited access highway to circle the outer perimeter of the renewal area and connect up with the airport access route was presented to the council.

Political Rally Set

A political rally will be sponsored Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in the College Park Recreation Center. All of the candidates in the Dec. 1 City Election are scheduled to attend the meeting. The program is sponsored by the College Park Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Dam Level At Morgan Stirs Fight

Prospect of a legal battle over raising the dam level to impound Chattahoochee River water at Morgan Falls loomed Tuesday as attorney Dan MacDougald protested to Mayor Hartsfield.

MacDougald said his client, the North Fulton Business Men's Association, contended the plan is "illegal and unnecessary." The city has earmarked $500,000 in bond funds to cooperate with the Georgia Power Co. in raising the dam level to insure an adequate and continuous flow of the river as a supplement to Buford Dam.

The attorney contended the proposed development would destroy "the economic value of the river" for 31 miles above Morgan Falls.

Hartsfield said the project is in the public interest, that the voters approved bonds for it, and he will continue to press for it.

Butler Area Park

The city will spend an estimated $200,500 for purchase and development of a 3.7-acre park in the Butler area urban renewal project, if recommendations of the aldermanic board's parks committee are followed.

The committee, headed by Ald. Charlie Leftwich, Tuesday set $75,500 as the tentative development cost. Previously, the committee agreed to spend $125,000 for the site, located at the southeast intersection of Hilliard and Tanner streets.

Registration Lagging

Robert Waller, city relocation housing officer, said Tuesday that 32,968 dwelling units were registered by 2,499 persons as owners or in behalf of owners.

He added that three large companies and an as yet undetermined number of individuals failed to comply with housing code requirements to register if an owner owns three or more rental units.

Failure to register before the Sept. 30 deadline is punishable by a $10 fine for each unregistered unit, under the housing code. Waller said checks are being made and when completed he will offer the list of those who failed to meet stipulations by registering with Building Inspector William R. Wofford, enforcement officer.

Budget Bars New Bids for Welfare Aid

The Fulton County Welfare Board, facing a tight 1959 budget, declined Tuesday to act on requests for increased payments to boarding homes.

County Welfare Administrator Wellborn R. Ellis told the board that if it approved the increased payments, it would have to go back before the County Budget Commission and get additional funds for 1959.

Ellis explained that the welfare board's budget for next year already has been approved by the commission.

The two requests for increased payments, the administrator explained, would amount to $10,520 additional annually. They came from Carrie Steele-Pitts Home, where the welfare department boards 55 children, and from Eventide Home, where 17 elderly women patients are boarded.

Board Chairman R. E. Dorough, commenting on the requests, pointed to the difficulty the board had in getting its new budget approved. "We can't come in now and go back again for more money," he said.

The board "indefinitely postponed" action on the requests, which Dorough said means the requests are "turned down for the time being."

In other actions, the board adopted a resolution praising the welfare board service of Dr. George M. Sparks, who died Oct. 28. The resolution said Dr. Sparks, who had been on the board since July 1, 1957, "served faithfully" and was held in high esteem by fellow board members.

Girl, 14, Shot By Beau Here in 'Roulette' Twist

A new version of Russian roulette Tuesday resulted in critical injury of a 14-year-old girl and the arrest of her boy friend, police said.

Rachael Bradley, 14, Negro, of 484 Fletcher St., SW, was admitted to Grady Hospital with a chest wound, Detective L. M. Jones said.

Jones said the boy friend, Albert Lee Young, 18, of 77 Reid St., SW, was jailed for suspicion of shooting another.

The two were seated on a sofa at the Fletcher street address, Jones related. He said Young placed one bullet in a .22-caliber revolver, spun the cylinder, pointed the gun at his girl friend and pulled the trigger. The pistol fired.

This Housecleaning Will Be Welcome

Disgusted at the messy state of affairs in the revenue department, Georgians are looking forward to the housecleaning promised by Gov.-elect Vandiver and Sen. Dixon Oxford whom he has selected as successor to Commissioner T. V. Williams Sr.

Public confidence in the department as now administered is at the very lowest ebb.

Citizens have been shocked by the scandals arising from investigation into the conduct of this highly important agency of state government.

Grand jury indictments have been returned charging certain officials with embezzlement; merit system regulations have been violated flagrantly; Commissioner Williams has been under fire for his handling of the "Illegal Liquor Campaign" fund and for his political activity.

Williams' dictatorial and arbitrary administration of matters pertaining to the liquor industry led to a grand jury recommendation that his office be stripped of such jurisdiction and that a commission be established. This is still a good idea regardless of who is revenue commissioner.

The abuse of power by Williams and the deterioration of his department into a shoddily run operation has evoked the indignation of Georgians who are fed up with paying taxes at a record clip in the face of inefficient and arrogant procedures in the influential office of the commissioner.

Gov.-elect Vandiver has ordered Sen. Oxford to clean up the mess, build up a competent staff, enforce and respect the law and apply it equally to every citizen. The latter has promised to do so and the citizens of this state are looking forward to seeing him carry out his duties honestly and conscientiously.

The need for reforms is glaring. Improvements in the situation by the incoming administration will be heartily welcomed.

Raw Courage Marked Victory Over Tarawa

Fifteen years ago today Americans had a lesson in geography, raw courage and the cost of "not enough."

The classroom was Betio Island, Tarawa atoll, in the South Pacific. The teachers were U.S. Marines, put ashore and supported by the Navy.

The attack had been prepared in haste and made without enough information about the battlefield and its defense.

Hanson L. Baldwin, writing in last Sunday's New York Times Magazine, said: ". . . the greatest lesson learned was the oldest lesson of war. Tarawa was won by stout hearts beneath the khaki shirts, by men willing to die. For the red badge of courage, war—and life itself—knows no substitute."

On the 15th anniversary of a battle immortal in American history, we pause a moment in prayerful thanksgiving to those men, living and dead, who fought from a front line on a coral reef to a beachhead on the sand, who took an island and an atoll because of courage they had enough.

Waters of the Nile Are Again Making History

In Sudan, another of Egypt's neighbors, one of the few remaining parliamentary democracies has been overthrown. In its place a military dictatorship is being installed. The latter, of course, is never something to be happy about.

Apparently a major cause of the revolt, which was a peaceful coup d'etat by Gen. Ibrahim Abboud, was the Sudan's relations with Egypt. Point of contention seems not to have been President Nasser's designs on the Sudan's independence nor does Pan-Arabism seem to have been a prime cause. The real question involves the waters of the Nile.

The Sudan wants a system of dams and storage in the upper waters of this vital river which runs through its territory into Egypt. President Nasser wants his Aswan Dam without the others. He seemed to be winning the argument when the revolt occurred. Whether this dispute precipitated the action in protest to reconciliation with Nasser still must be determined.

As in Iraq, where those who staged the revolt have resisted Nasser's ambitions, the Sudan is in danger of Communist infiltration. An eventual Communist takeover in Iraq has become a real danger since the new regime has lifted many of the rigid bars against Red activity.

At any rate, what is happening is important to all of us. The Middle East is still a cauldron with a major role in history.

Sen. Johnson Shows Qualities of Statesman

By virtue of the Democratic landslide in the congressional elections, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas as majority leader in the U.S. Senate holds responsibilities exceeded only by the President and perhaps one or two others in the national government.

In the past Sen. Johnson has demonstrated an ability to rise above partisanship in supporting measures in the best interests of the nation.

Monday, before a United Nations committee studying the outer space problem, the Texan continued to show his sense of responsibility. Appearing at the request of President Eisenhower, he told the committee not to mistake "the essential unity of the American people." He reminded its members that United States' outer space proposals have the backing of both parties as well as that of the President.

"We of the United States," said Mr. Johnson, "do not acknowledge that there are landlords of outer space who can presume to bargain with the nations of the earth on the price of access to their new domain. . . . Men who have worked together to reach the stars are not likely to descend together into the depths of war and desolation."

While the resolution for which he spoke calls for international cooperation through the United Nations in exploration of outer space as the concern of all mankind, Sen. Johnson served another purpose. He told the committee and the world that although the President's party was defeated badly, there is no division on national objectives of peace and in fulfilling our world role.

All the American people are in debt to the Texas senator for his patriotism and sane approach.

Keeping Schools Open Is the Big Challenge

Georgians continue to show their worry about possible closing of the public school system. They are looking at the price they may have to pay to maintain totally segregated schools and finding it heavy indeed. And, of course, the final choice will be theirs whether it be next year or years afterward.

Here in Atlanta the West End-Cascade Heights Civitan Club and the executive committee of the Cascade Elementary School PTA have adopted resolutions backing a local option plan such as proposed by Mayor Hartsfield.

The prospect of no schools yesterday brought a go-slow statement from Quimby Melton Jr., a Georgia editor and legislator who has been a stanch supporter of segregation. Said Mr. Melton: "The dire consequences of shutting down the public school system of Georgia are as unthinkable in my mind as is the mixing of the races in the classrooms of Georgia."

The legislator is quoted further: "I am opposed to the surrender of the public school system of Georgia under any circumstances unless something equally good and offering equal opportunities to all our children is offered as a substitute. . . . Education for the children of only the wealthier parents and illiteracy for all the rest would be a heinous crime resulting in utter disaster."

It is not so simple a matter as just "throwing in the towel" or surrender. The real test of Georgia leadership to come up with some method of preserving the public school system transcends the importance of any individual. If it resolves itself into a question of sacrificing education for a generation of Georgia children, the price would be an incalculable burden.

Public Told This Time Of Insurance Changes

The prompt manner in which adjustments in "home owners' package" insurance policy rates was announced Monday contrasts sharply with the air of secrecy prevailing in February when Commissioner Zack Cravey approved increases for other type policies.

Thus the furor created by the high-handed action of last winter apparently has driven home a lesson. Whenever rates are changed, whether up or down, Georgians demand that they be informed immediately.

The current adjustments, by and large, mean that policyholders in areas with good fire protection facilities will pay less while those where the opposite condition prevails will be charged more.

The public can only hope that Commissioner Cravey investigated thoroughly this time, in contrast to his laxity last February, before stamping his approval on new rates.

'Follow Your Nose, Mr. Oxford, You Can't Miss It!'

Proposed Army-Marine Manpower Cut Called Dangerous To Country's Security

Atlanta — Army and Marine Corps manpower cuts are alarming to us who have some knowledge of the over-all strength of the forces as compared to commitments around the world.

It was precisely the kind of reasoning ascribed to the secretary of defense that brought about the tragedy of the beginning of the war in Korea. B36 bombers were substituted for fighting soldiers prior to that conflict. In the actual fighting, B36s were markedly absent while W.W. II B29s carried the bombs and clerks, truck drivers, typists and raw recruits learned how to fight while in battle.

To the Department of Defense, a cut of 30,000 from the Army's 900,000 and 25,000 from the Marine's 175,000 cannot be more than a gesture; the money saving is negligible. To the services, however, these are far from being token cuts.

The Army cut means closing of two to three installations and stripping training detachments. This is extremely dangerous.

There are only four divisions designated for the protection of the whole continental United States.

Korea was expensive in lives, money and prestige but it was limited. A similar recklessness in the face of a global threat is unthinkable.

Civilian Aide to

What Do Grades Mean in Decatur?

Decatur—The students of Decatur city schools received their report cards recently.

I still am in the dark as to my son's ability to learn anything. He received an S in one subject and a U in another. The unusual thing about this was that one teacher graded him with an S but said it was below college average, which is 80.

Now according to the way I understand the grading system, she is saying that my son is performing satisfactorily according to his ability. The other teacher gave him a U but said it was above college average of 80. Now he is saying my son is capable of doing better work according to his ability.

Should I believe my son is of average mentality because one teacher says he is capable of doing more and encourage him or should I believe the other teacher and let him alone because she says he is doing all he can at below 80 average?

I say it is time for a change in the grading system at Decatur city schools. I have had my child in another school where they used A-B-C-D and I know that he had more to strive for when there wasn't such a wide difference in the grading system.

Lithonian Reflects On 'God's Canvas'

Lithonia—:

GOD'S CANVAS

The autumn's multi-colored leaves
Replace the sea of green,
And flitting crazily to earth,
They change the forest scene.

And in the valley down below,
The chimney smoke unwinds,
And curling, spreads toward the sky
In strangely fading vines.

Horizons add a rosy hue—
The sign that winter's near.
Nature wears her brightest suit
Until another year.

For now, the artist of creation,
In a somber vein,
Sweeps his brush across the land
And paints the world again.

'Health Authorities Should Fluoridate'

Atlanta—I fail to see the point of the Thomas argument against the fluoridation of Atlanta's drinking water. He maintains that the health authorities have no right to fluoridate his water; yet he does not deny the fact that the result of such an action would undoubtedly be beneficial to a great many people. From reading his letter one might conclude that he wears false teeth.

My line of reasoning may be ridiculous, and no offense is meant to Thomas, but it is not nearly so ridiculous as his contention that "the city has no more right to add fluoride to the water than they have to add 180-proof alcohol."

Concentrated State Patrol Helps Cut Accident Rate

It is common knowledge to motorists in this section of Wisconsin that after the State Traffic Patrol concentrated squad cars on Highway 41 from the Milwaukee County line south to Illinois, violations were quickly curbed and traffic moved far more smoothly and closer to the legal speed limit.

Now, on the basis of a two-year study made in cooperation with the Northwestern University Traffic Institute and financed by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, the patrol can show more exactly what the effect of enforcement has been.

Four test routes were patrolled —Highway 41 north and south from Milwaukee, a combination of highways near Madison and Highway 12 from Baraboo north to the Minnesota line. In all cases accidents declined from the number that could have been expected on the basis of past experience. Second-year results were better than first-year, suggesting cumulative improvement. Traffic moved at a steadier pace, with pokey drivers speeded up and speedy drivers slowed down.

Such results are gratifying and point up the worth of enforcement. But the real value of a study of this sort lies in suggesting how the patrol's present strength can best be used and where additional enforcement is needed.

Birmingham News

The Veterans Administration has issued a report on the repayment of loans extended by private firms, but guaranteed by the government, for the building of homes for American veterans of the several services.

The loan repayment rate has been excellent. Statistics show that in the 14 years of the program only about 42,000 loans have had to be paid off by the government. GIs have handled their obligations well. The 42,000 represent only eight-tenths of 1 per cent of the total loans granted.

The Bite Was On Old Tige

Add to Georgia folklore, this tale revived, refreshed and reprinted by Vincent Jones in his "Last Straw" column, Jackson Progress-Argus:

"A backwoodsman boasted his Tige was the best hunting dog in seven counties. He said he never went hunting that Tige did not tree a varmint and that by the way he barked, old Tige told him what the varmint was.

"A newcomer, who thought the old-timer must be stretching the blanket a bit, offered to bet old Tige could not tell one varmint from another. So to settle the wager the men went hunting the next night. They turned Tige loose in the creek bottom and told him to sic.

"'There ain't no use in walking around a lot,' said the backwoodsman. 'Old Tige will let us know when he finds something.'

"They had not been sitting long when old Tige was heard.

"'Jest wait,' said the settler. 'He ain't treed yet.'

"They sat for a few minutes longer, then old Tige sounded a new note.

"'He's treed now,' said the backwoodsman.

"'What's he got?' asked the newcomer.

"'I reckon that must be a bobcat.'

"When they reached the tree and held up their torch, sure enough there was a bobcat. They shot it and put Tige on the trail again.

"After a while Tige bayed.

"'He's treed,' said the old-timer.

"'What's he got this time?'

"'I reckon that must be a possum.'

"They came to the tree, and sure enough there was the possum.

"Again they sat while Tige ranged and again Tige bayed.

"'What's Tige got this time?'

"'I reckon that must be a coon.'

"Again the prediction proved correct.

"The newcomer was ready to pay the wager, but the night was young and old-timer was eager for more hunting. So Tige was put on the trail and presently he bayed again.

"Then suddenly his bark changed to a long howl that seemed to shake the trees and hills.

"'What's Tige got now?' asked the newcomer.

An Alabama adherent has the temerity to suggest something like that happened to Tech last weekend.

My own theory is: The Tech boys knew they had an off Saturday coming and took it a week too soon.

Romantic Liberals Soar Above Party

WASHINGTON—In the Democratic Party there are professional, or romantic, liberals and there are plain, or working, liberals. The romantic Democratic liberals respond to new and "modern" faces with ecstatic high-mindedness—the newer the faces the gladder the ecstasy. The working Democratic liberals have mostly a common view on issues with their more enthusiastic colleagues.

The great difference is that the working liberals are, first of all, simply Democrats. To them the word "liberal" qualifies but does not supplant the operative word "Democrat." In short, they like their party to win elections. These are what might be called the Harry Truman liberals.

But the romantic Democratic liberals have aims so much more diffuse—and possibly so much more elevated—as to be difficult to define.

These gentlemen—and ladies—are now considerably worrying the more "regular" liberal Democrats—and sorely worrying all purely organizational Democrats of whatever hue. For these professional liberals are rushing into headlong embrace—more in private than in public, it is true—of the image of the Republican governor-elect of New York, Nelson Rockefeller, as the properly inevitable president for 1960.

All this is not welcome news to the 1960 Democratic presidential nominee, whoever he may turn out to be—and however liberal, for that matter, he may turn out to be. For ostensible Democrats are making very early and very emotional commitments to Rockefeller. And by this time they are necessarily weakening the prospective Democratic position for 1960.

There is, in fact, a strong parallel between this "I like Nelson" movement among the romantic liberal Democrats and another movement among the same kind of group in 1948. Then, some of these professional Democratic liberals began an earnest pursuit of a curious theory. This was that President Truman ought to step aside and more or less force a "new face," Dwight Eisenhower, to take over the presidential nomination.

It is commonly forgotten now, but the chant "I like Ike" arose in this quarter even before it arose among any considerable number of Republicans.

Now it may well eventuate that Nelson Rockefeller will be the very model of what the romantic liberals really want. This, however, is not inevitable—and not even highly probable.

What is certain, however, is that a similar movement of spiritual secession by professional liberals weakened the Truman administration and contributed to what was possibly fated anyhow — Operation Throw-the-Democrats-Out in 1952.

It does not now seem that all this really served the interests of any kind of liberal Democrat. The Republicans, even those not desperate to have Rockefeller as their 1960 nominee, are watching current professional liberal developments with pleased interest.

Many Are Upset By Mere Trifles

Sometimes we hear of persons who have been worried to death by details. Napoleon once spoke of persons who are tortured to death by pin pricks. In speaking of the trifles which come to dominate our thoughts and action I don't want to imply that small things are unimportant.

Emerson once made the observation that the creation of a 1,000-tree forest is in one acorn. Yet many small cuts by an ax will fell the mightiest of trees, and one small leak will sink a great ship. So small things are important in one respect or another. My thought here concerns those trifles which are of little value and ought not to be given attention, but which when magnified in our imaginations cripple our thoughts and hamper the full possibilities of our lives.

The effect of trifles is something to which we are all vulnerable. We live in situations in which trivial things like snoring husbands, empty gas tanks and noisy neighbors greatly irritate us. These irritations, when we dwell on them, become annoyances and annoyances have a way in time of becoming deeply seated resentments.

Long ago a Hebrew poet wrote a sentence which has an enduring truth: "Catch us the foxes, the little foxes that spoil the vineyard" (Song of Solomon 2:15). These little foxes are the trifles that make sour the wine of life. What can we do about them?

First, we must learn to live in situations in which they exist, that is, if there is really nothing that can be done about them. And, of course, there are some trifles over which we have no control and about which we can do next to nothing. To resign ourselves to their disturbing influences and to make up our minds that they have to be put up with bring a healing effect into our lives.

A friend who dabbles in psychology says that every home ought to have a door that is used only for kicking purposes. Everyone, he thinks, needs a door he can kick. This offers release for pent-up emotions. I am not sure I agree with my friend. If we take to kicking doors, we are likely to begin to kick ourselves, then our friends and life itself. Finally, we end up by complaining about God.

Better than kicking doors is to master our thinking and to control our emotions. If this kicking is about the kind of inevitable circumstances over which we have no power, then we are better off if we admit that we are powerless and accept these trifles. But there are trifles about which we can do something, and I shall mention these tomorrow.

The Issue Is Law, Order or Chaos

WASHINGTON—Current headlines read: "Little Rock Ordered To Resume Integration;" "Little Rock School Board Quits;" "Catholics, Protestants Support Integration;" "Integrated School Dynamited." One thing is excruciatingly evident: It is that the problem of public school integration is not going to be resolved by continuing to ignore it, to neglect it, to try to pretend it doesn't exist.

It is simply no longer good enough for the President and Congress to base policy on the wishful hope that if they close their eyes tight enough, it will go away.

The need is to replace a policy of neglect and default with positive action by the President, the Congress and the governors.

As the basis for useful federal-state action it seems to me these facts must be fixed clearly in mind:

The integration ruling can only be changed by a reversal of the Supreme Court's unanimous decision or by constitutional amendment. Neither of these things is going to happen.

Either the Fourteenth Amendment, as interpreted by the court, is going to be carried out or massively evaded and if at any level of government citizens are to accept only those decisions of the Supreme Court they like, then our very system of law and order is on the way to breaking up.

Wise, patient, prudent but steady enforcement is attainable but only if the President, the Congress and the governors act to attain it.

Already 400,000 Negro students are attending integrated Southern schools and nearly 800—about 27 per cent—of the South's bi-racial school districts have some desegregation.

It is wishful to expect that mass integration is possible of early attainment in the South, but it is equally untrue to contend that no integration in the South is possible, because it is already taking place and being slowly extended.

What, then, needs to be done?

The need is to further the judicious extension of the desegregation process while at the same time making it clear that integration is not going to be imposed massively overnight before local opinion has been prepared.

I am convinced legislation in support of the Fourteenth Amendment is urgently required and for the following reasons:

1. We are dealing with a federal right, the right of equal protection, and Congress has the duty to act because the Fourteenth Amendment specifically invests Congress with enforcement authority.

2. Implementing legislation would remove the mist from the minds of many that avoidance of the Supreme Court decision is possible because there is "no law" on the subject and would put the moral weight of the legislative branch of the government behind the Fourteenth Amendment.

The alternative to some such action is chaos.

No. 60: Know Your County

Lusty, Young Fulton Is State's Population Giant

Fulton County, in northwest Central Georgia, was created from DeKalb County in 1853. It ranks 104th in order of creation, making it one of Georgia's younger counties. In 1932, Campbell and Milton counties were absorbed by Fulton. The county was named for Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat.

Atlanta, the county seat, was originally named Terminus (around 1842), and later Marthasville (1843-1847). It was a child of the railroads. Union Gen. Sherman captured the city after a sixth weeks' siege in August 1864, seizing its rail lines to prevent food and munitions from reaching Southern armies in Virginia. This spelled the doom of the Confederacy.

Atlanta was ordered "burned, blown and torn up" by Sherman on Nov. 14, 1864. All but 400 of the city's 4,500 homes and buildings were destroyed. It was quickly rebuilt after the war. But on May 21, 1917, another disastrous fire hit the city, destroying 2,000 buildings. That too was swiftly rebuilt.

The state capital was moved to Atlanta from Milledgeville in 1868.

While Fulton is the state's chief industrial center, it ranks high in agriculture. Fulton covers 523 square miles, ranking 19th in size. There were 2,127 farms, averaging 77 acres, in the county in 1954. Fulton ranked eighth in income from all livestock and 11th in number of broilers sold in 1954.

Fulton County has a population of 561,000 (1957 estimate), ranking first in the state, with 488,400 living in Atlanta. Other towns in the county are College Park, East Point, Hapeville, Roswell, Fairburn, Union City, Alpharetta and Palmetto. Educational institutions in the county include Georgia Institute of Technology, Georgia State College of Business Administration, Atlanta University, Atlanta Christian College and Georgia Military Academy.

Tomorrow: Gilmer County.

Motorist Slays Augusta Officer

AUGUSTA (UPI)—A veteran Augusta police officer was slain Tuesday night when he stopped a speeding automobile and sought to question the driver about a liquor store robbery.

The policeman, Motorcycle Officer Frank H. Wall, about 30, died at 10:45 p.m. two hours and 15 minutes after being wounded by a suspect in the holdup.

Police immediately launched a huge manhunt through Georgia and South Carolina for the killer.

Wall, a member of the Augusta police force for 11 years, was married and the father of three children.

It was Augusta's first police killing since July 8, 1934.

Police Pvt. D. C. McCaslan reported that "everybody available in the city is looking" for the man who shot down Wall.

Wall reportedly stopped a 1956 Bel Air Chevrolet about 1½ miles from the Sheehan Liquor store to question the driver in connection with an attempted robbery of the liquor store.

McCaslan said the gunman killed Wall and sped off in the Chevrolet, which was reported stolen minutes later.

Doctors Remove Pin From Girl's Throat

A 15-year-old girl who swallowed a straight pin in Manor was rushed to Atlanta Tuesday and the pin was removed by magnet.

Miss Wanell Henderson was sped to the Ponce de Leon Infirmary by a relay of State Patrol cars over the 250-mile-plus trip.

Birth Defects Called No. 1 Challenge

March of Dimes volunteer workers Tuesday heard folklore and superstition blamed for impeding progress toward solution of the problem of birth defects in newborn infants.

Thie field of birth defects is "the largest unmet childhood medical problem," declared Dr. Henry W. Kumm of New York, chief of virus research and epidemiology for the National March of Dimes Foundation.

Speaking at a meeting of volunteer workers in the Dinkler Plaza, Kumm said the subject "has long been shrouded in superstition."

Kumm said the national foundation is now supporting two scientific investigation in an effort to determne whether two recently discovered viruses can cause abnormal children by attacking pregnant women.

George Goodwin, Fulton County March of Dimes director, said the $65,000,000 March of Dimes 1959 campaign against arthritis, birth defects and polio "is the greatest health challenge ever presented to the American people."

Norfolk Votes 3-2 For Shut Schools

a citizen would have had to pay his poll taxes in March.

The ballot, as drawn by the city council, put the question as follows:

"Shall the council of the city of Norfolk, pursuant to state law, petition the governor to return to the city control of the schools, now closed, to be opened by the city on an integrated basis as required by the federal court?"

The turnout in the election was about what politicians here had predicted. In statements made last week to the press they forecast a total vote of between 20,000 and 25,000. The vote total was 21,026. The largest turnout in Norfolk's history was for the 1956 presidential election when 36,000 voted.

The referendum was unique in Norfolk voting history, because this city's strong Democratic organization stayed out of the campaign. The only organized forces were the committee for public schools, which is opposed to massive resistance, and the Defenders who are supporters of the state stand against integration.

Campaigning got off to a slow start. It was only this week that paid newspaper advertisements and sample guide ballots were distributed by the opposing sides.

Only one rally was called after the referendum was announced, and that was sponsored by the defenders.

Rep. John Bell Williams, of Mississippi, spoke here last week to about 1,000 boosters of massive resistance.

Ramifications of Tuesday's vote could be great. Prior to the time the referendum was set in motion, the Norfolk Board of Education appealed to the city council to abandon plans for the referendum.

They charged that to hold the referendum would settle nothing and would fan integration and segregation feelings.

The school board wanted the council to demand the return of the schools without a vote. When asked Tuesday night for a comment on the voting outcome, the school board members answered with a "no comment."

CLOSED SCHOOLS

The closed schools—three high schools and three junior high schools—were shut down because the school board under federal court order enrolled 17 Negro students.

Enrollment automatically triggered the state's massive resistance appartus and shut school doors to 10,000 students.

The committee for public school was immediately formed and served as a rallying point for persons wanting the schools opened with or without integration.

Segregation forces had been expecting the closing of the schools and had set up an organization known as the Tidewater Educational Foundation to continue schooling under a private system. But the Foundation movement all but collapsed when teachers refused to serve.

TUTORING GROUPS

The teachers instead have signed on with nonpartisan neighborhood tutoring groups meeting in churches, private homes and office buildings.

About 5,000 of the idle students are enrolled in these groups. Almost 1,000 are going to nearby South Norfolk to emergency night classes, which begin at 4 p.m. and end at 9 p.m.

Others have enrolled in nearby schools, and no fewer than 387 are attending schools outside Virginia.

Hapeville's Jaycees Get 'No Apology'

Irate representatives of the Hapeville Junior Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night requested a "public apology" from Mayor Eugene E. Dixon Jr., and were refused.

Dixon told a delegation of visiting Jaycees, "If my remarks were misconstrued in any way so as to reflect on the Junior Chamber of Commerce, I regret it. I have no apology to make. I support the Junior Chamber in every respect." His remarks were directed at individuals, he explained.

Jaycee President David Vaughn faced the mayor with the request relating to statements made by the mayor during the meeting of Nov. 3, on a question of letting the Junior Chamber use city facilities in the "Get Out the Vote" drive for the City Election Dec. 2.

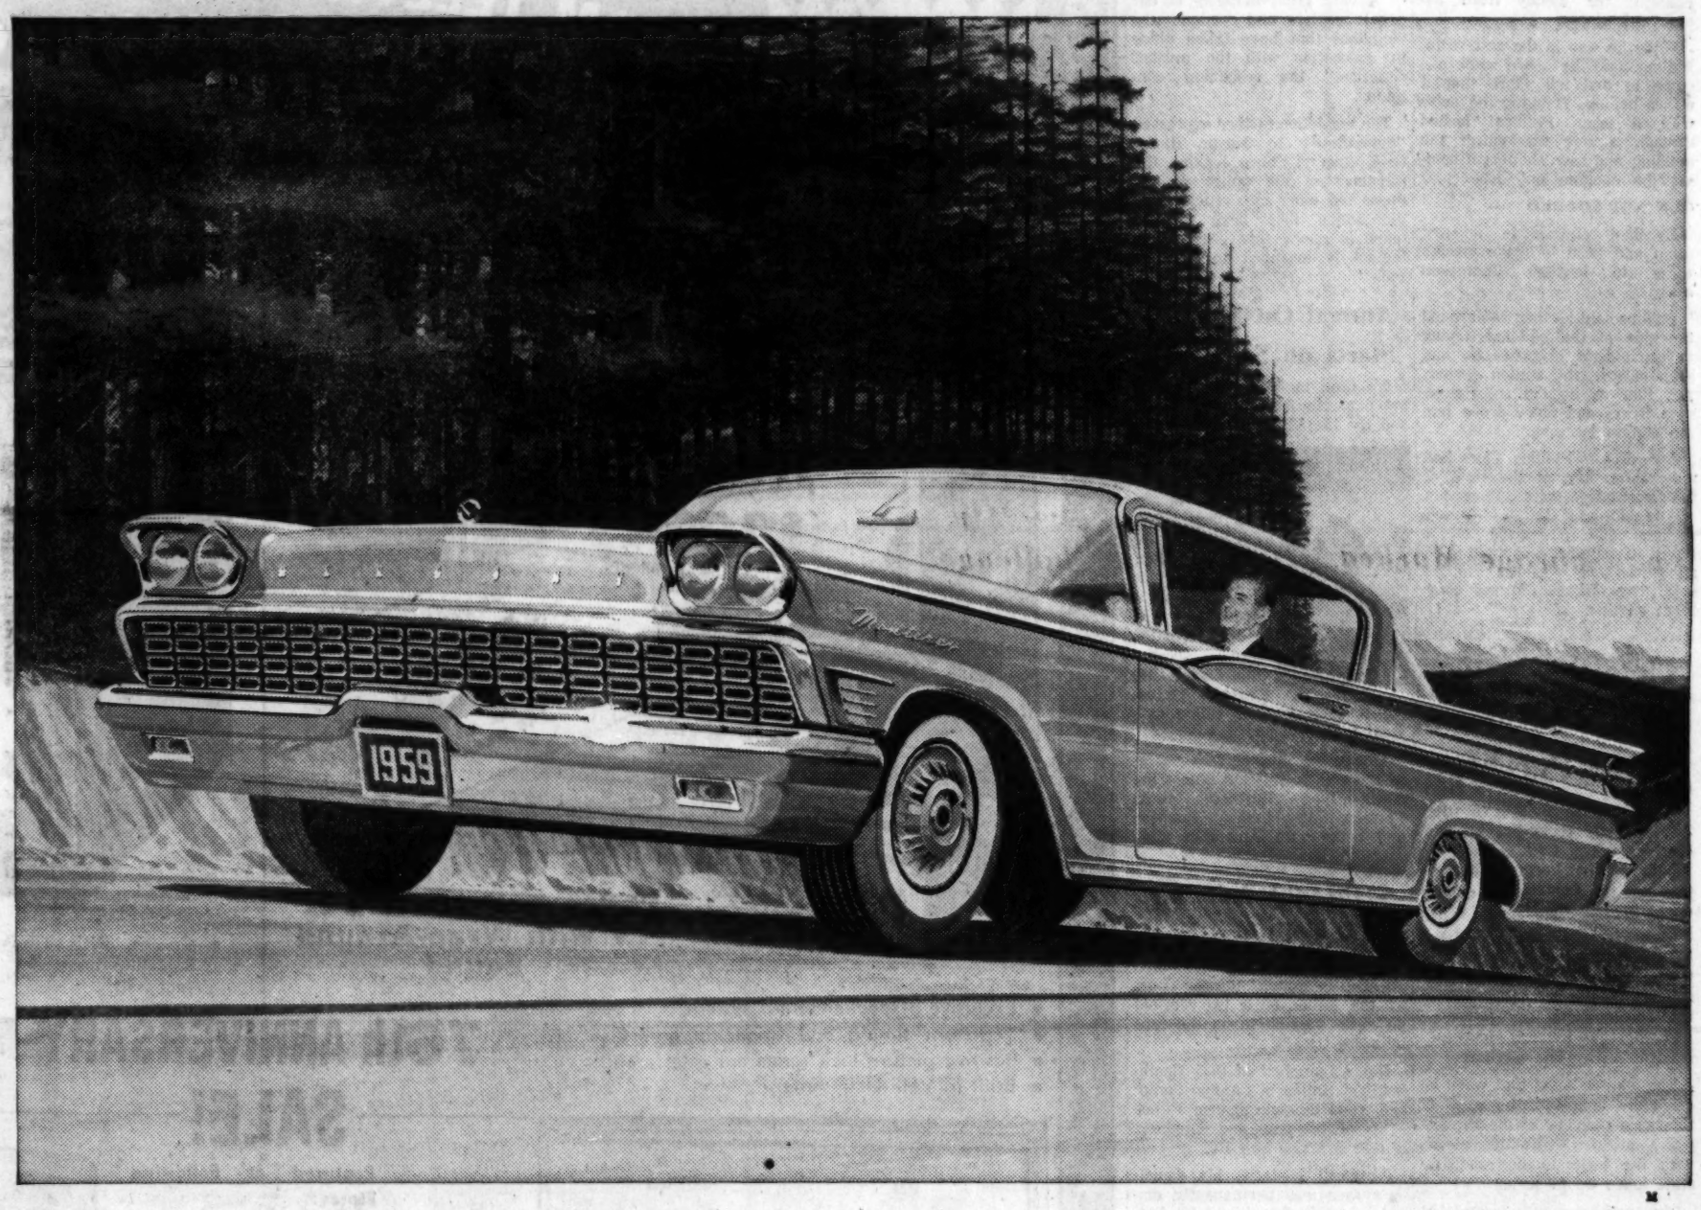
Dixon had stated in the meeting that it had come to his attention that individuals in the preceeding year's campaign had solicited for individual candidates, while operating a non-partisan taxi service.

The council promoted four police officers. Acting Assistant Chief T. W. Pendley was moved permanently to that position; Lt. James E. Clay was promoted to captain; Patrolman Nicholas Boris was promoted to lieutenant and Patrolman H. L. Bearden to sergeant.

HOW MILLIONS ESCAPE DANGER OF DISTRESSING
"Laxative Morning-After Weakness"!
Millions have found that the distressing "morning-after" feeling of headache and weakness which often follows the taking of a laxative can be avoided.
The medical formula which has made this possible is Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. These pure vegetable tablets work only in the bowel, not in the stomach. Hence do not upset digestion. What they do is soften the dry, hardened waste and relax the intestinal muscles . . . promoting easy elimination without griping or discomfort . . . without weakening distress of any kind!
That is why Olive Tablets proved 58% more effective than 6 other types of laxatives in hospital tests. Guaranteed to give satisfactory results. For economy get large size.

That tired, "washed-out" feeling in the morning may come from a laxative that's all wrong for you!
Dr. Edwards' OLIVE Tablets
All Vegetable LAXATIVE
Olive Tablets act "like a charm" but with surprising gentleness. That's because they do not affect stomach — work only in the bowels.

ANNOUNCING THE FIRST LUXURY CARS WITH A CONSCIENCE: NEW GAS-SAVING MONTEREYS



New economy-powered Mercury Montereys let you "ride free" 10 miles in every 100
It's about time someone made a luxury car with a V-8 engine that delivers top performance on regular (not premium) gasoline. And Mercury's done it with this beautiful Monterey. You save 10% every time you stop for gas. And you get more mileage with regular gasoline than many cars with premium.
It's about time someone built a beautifully styled car that is truly comfortable. Mercury's done it.
• For easier entrance, this Monterey has wider front doors than the costliest cars. The windshield pillar has been moved out of the way of your knees and elbows.
• For extra knee room, the instrument panel has been moved away from your lap. There's 9 inches more room for real stretch-out comfort.
• For extra comfort for center-seat passengers, the tunnel-hump in the floor has been cut in half. Passengers in the middle no longer ride with their legs doubled up. And the lower hump makes room for thicker seat cushioning—not just thin padding.
In a dozen ways, the '59 Mercury has made pleasures out of what are still problems in other '59 cars: New windshield wipers have an overlapping pattern, clear even the center. New aluminized mufflers last twice as long. New anti-dive suspension checks "nose dip" on sudden stops. Self-adjusting brakes eliminate periodic adjustment. New Super-Enamel finish keeps its beauty—doesn't need waxing for years.
Best of all, these beautiful Montereys are attractively priced—well within the reach of 2 out of 3 new-car buyers. We invite you to see them at our showroom.

METROPOLITAN BRIEFS

Dynamite Cache Brings In the FBI

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was called in Tuesday after 24 sticks of dynamite and 100 blasting caps were found beside a dirt road behind Stone Mountain.

The dynamite was found Sunday afternoon by a state prison guard but was not reported to DeKalb County police until Tuesday morning.

It was the second dynamite find in DeKalb in four weeks. A highly unstable dynamite bomb was found in a weed patch in the 3900 block of Chamblee-Dunwoody road on Oct. 21. Police are still investigating to determine its origin.

The dynamite found Sunday apparently was stolen from Stone Mountain Quarry Co. magazine.

"There was no sign either the dynamite house or the cap house were broken into," said O. A. King, a partner in the granite company. "It looks like someone used a key."

Police Foil Holdup in East Point

Two East Point police officers Tuesday morning drove into a Main street filling station on their regular round and foiled a holdup.

Patrolmen K. V. Byers and R. T. Shaw said that when they drove up to the Spur Distributing Co. filling station on North Main Street at Lawrence Avenue, Roy Clore, the night attendant, ran out and crouched down by the car and said:

"I am being held up."

SAWED-OFF SHOTGUN

Then the day attendant, Donald Phillips, ran from the service station rest room. Inside the small office, the officers found James David Thompson, 30, of West Point, who had thrown a sawed-off shotgun into a corner.

Phillips, who lives at 323 Whipple Ave., East Point, said that he had just came on duty and had asked Clore to remain a few minutes after they had exchanged the money from the night's business.

While he was in the rest room, Phillips said, he heard some one come in and tell Clore that it was a holdup. Thinking the noise was a joke, Phillips looked through a side window of the building and saw Thompson holding the shotgun on Clore.

GUN NOT LOADED

He then returned to the rest room and tried to make enough noise to frighten Thompson away.

Phillips said he then ran around the side of the building, trying to catch sight of police he had seen passing the station earlier, and that as he did so, Patrolmen Byers and Shaw drove into the station lot.

According to Phillips, Clore had only $2 on him at the time of the attempted theft. Thompson was booked on a charge of armed robbery and possession of a sawed-off automatic shotgun. The gun was not loaded Phillips said. The officers did not comment on this.

Thrasher Asks Cook To Rule on Docks Purchase

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr., formally requested Tuesday that Atty. Gen. Cook rule on the validit of the Ports Authority's purchase of Central of Georgia docks in Savannah.

Thrasher previously had stated he had doubts about legality of the purchase because Gov. Griffin had transferred $150,000 from the surplus fund for insurance and personnel cost increases brought on by the purchase.

The auditor noted that when he originally approved the transaction as a member of the Properties Acquisition Committee, it was with the understanding that no state funds would be used.

The purchase was completed last Friday. The authority put up $560,000 in cash and $2,220,000 from bonds for the docks. However, 20-day appeals period on the bond validation has not yet passed.

Steel Strike Violence Deplored by C. of C.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's board of directors has approved a resolution expressing concern "with events that have recently taken place in connection with the strike at Atlantic Steel Company."

"All of our people in the metropolitan area have a paramount interest in the early restoration of economic peace and normal business conditions in our community," the resolution said.

"A very great majority of our people deplore and condemn the violations that have taken place in connection with the present situation," the resolution continued.

The resolution further expressed "appreciation to Mayor Hartsfield, Chief of Police Jenkins, the members of the police department and other city officials for the action they have already taken in seeing that proper protection is extended to all citizens."

Annual Cat Show Starts on Saturday

It's time to let the cat out of the bag. Mousers from 12 states and the District of Columbia will be putting on the dog at the annual championship show of the Cotton States Cat Club here Saturday and Sunday.

Silver Persian

The sponsors say it will be a howling — or is meowing a better word? — success with some 210 entries, including a sprinkling of calico cats (real ones, that is).

Among the other breeds represented will be Russian Blues (the newest type), Burmese, Manx, Persian, Abyssinians, Siamese and some rare American alley cats.

$100,000 Suit Filed In Dog Biting Case

A $100,000 damage suit was filed Tuesday in Fulton Superior Court by the father of a two-year-old girl who was bitten on the face by a dog Oct. 24.

David Campbell of 6885 Heathfield Dr., father of Carolyn Campbell, filed the suit against Elmer F. Born, his wife and daughter, of 6890 Brandon Mill Rd.

Campbell contends his daughter's face was permanently disfigured when the animal bit her. His suit alleges the dog's owners were negligent in not keeping it penned up because, he alleged, they knew its tendency to bite anyone who attempted to pet the animal.

Scottie the (Homeless) Skunk Finds a Home Has Its Perils

Woe is Scottie the skunk.

He came here from Texas as a birthday present for 18-year-old Judy Halsell, a freshman at Agnes Scott.

He stayed at a fraternity house at Georgia Tech, but just for one night.

Judy wanted to keep him in her dormitory. School officials didn't want her to keep him in her dormitory. She didn't keep him in her dormitory.

Day student Judy Hines took him home with her. The Hineses found him not as tame as he could be. He moved again.

An ad in the Atlanta papers appealed for a home. Mrs. Herman Jones saw the ad, looked around and saw they had no skunk for a pet (only two parakeets, an alligator, a dog and two cats) and took him.

After a week's trial run, the Jonese have decided to keep him. But they're not sure where, yet.

They can't give him to run of the yard; he runs away.

They can't keep him in the kitchen; he might bother the parakeets.

They might keep him in a little pen of his own.

"He might like that," says Mrs. Jones.

But Mrs. Jones is looking for a wildcat to add to her group.

Woe is Scottie.

Come to Hospital and Get Well, Writes TB-Stricken Betty, 9, to Missing Patsy, 7

A 9-year-old Douglasville girl who is suffering from tuberculosis of the bone Tuesday wrote an open letter to Patsy Gillespie, 7, urging her to "come to the hospital so you could get well."

Patsy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otha Gillespie, 439 Ethel St., NW, is being hunted by public health authorities who are trying to obtain her parents' consent for medical treatment.

Doctors have said Patsy also is suffering from TB of the bone. Her parents have declined medical treatment on religious grounds.

The letter to Patsy, written by Betty Smith, daughter of Lamar Smith of Douglasvile from Battey State Hospital, Rome, follows:

Hello Patsy,

How are you? I'm fine. I hope your (sic) feeling o.k.

I read about you having TB in the bone just like me. I lie in a cast from my neck to my ankles, but I still have fun. There are 21 other children on my ward. The boys play cowboys and the girls play dolls. We have a lot of dolls and other play things.

The doctors and nurses are very sweet and good to us. The nurses read and play with us. And if we want them to they will write letters for us. We have a radio and TV set on the ward.

I wish you would come to the hospital so you could get well. I'm sure you would like it because there are a lot of little girls here your age. I want you to get well, just like I'm going to get well. The doctor said that when I go home that I will live a normal life. And if you come up here and get well you will too.

Your parents can come to visit you in the hospital every day.

Oh yes, we have school and Sunday school up here. Our teachers or (sic) very sweet. I am praying for you.

more to cripple American agriculture than all the droughts and pestilence that have plagued our farmers throughout the course of history.

"The American free enterprise system was built upon a foundation of free and independent family-type farms," the governor-elect declared. "It will be a sad day for America and the end of our country as we and our forebears have known it," he added, "if giant corporate farming supplants our family system in agriculture."

Earlier Tuesday morning, convention delegates heard 2nd District Congressman J. L. Pilcher severely criticize the American Farm Bureau Federation for "trying to wreck the farm parity program."

He urged the Georgia Farm Bureau, however, not to pull out of the national body, but to grow strong enough so it can be instrumental in "changing the leadership of the American Farm Bureau Federation."

As to farm legislation, Russell advocated a new permanent type farm bill that will allow a two-price system on basic commodities."

Speaking of other problems the next session of Congress will be confronted with, Russell said the "minority groups will again attempt to get the 'gag rule' passed to cut off debates in the Senate. Terming it the brain-child of Walter Reuther, he declared, "I don't think Mr. Reuther should be given the authority to change the rules of the Senate."

Again he promised "the hardest fight they (minority groups) have ever seen."

FOR THE FUTURE—WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower hands a letter to Mrs. Iven Kincheloe Jr. of Oakland, Calif. In it the President asks "The President of the United States in 1972-1976" to consider appointing Iven Kincheloe III, now 19½ months old, to the Air Force Academy. The boy's father, an Air Force captain, was killed last July while testing a plane. Capt. Kincheloe in 1956 flew higher than any other man—126,000 feet.

Reds Sell Liberty but Deliver Dictators, Dulles Says

CLEVELAND, — Secretary of State Dulles gravely warned the world's newly-established independent nations here Tuesday against the blandishments of international Communism.

In a speech that reviewed the basic foreign policies of the Eisenhower administraion, Dulles emphasized that a first flush of independence may turn out to be nothing more than a "brief interlude between the rule of colonialism and the harsh dictatorship of Communism."

Dulles addressed the opening session of a four-day world order study conference under the sponsorship of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. He spokes in the music hall of Cleveland's public auditorium.

Dulles pointed out that new nations face a formidable task. They are immediately "marked out" by Communism, he told the religious organization, as a special group.

Classic Communist doctrine, he noted, conforms to the teaching of Lenin that nationalism must first be stimulated in order to break eventually the ties between colonial areas and colonial powers.

Dulles, who arrived here late Tuesday afternoon by plane, will leave Wednesday for a brief vacation on Duck Island in Lake Ontario.

Communism today, Dulles declared, follows a similar tack "It seeks to distort nationalism into extremes and to poison relations between the newly-independent countries and the world," he said.

Dulles elaborated at some length on the basic foreign policy of the United States.

Essentially, he asserted, it rests on two propositions: "We want peace, liberty and well-being for ourselves and we cannot be sure of peace, liberty or well-being unless other nations can have them likewise."

Bodyguard of Prince Beats the Begum Aga

ROME (AP)—The Begum Aga Khan flew in from Cairo Tuesday as the bruised and shaken victor in a hotel bedroom fight against the mixed up bodyguard of a little Saudi Arabian prince.

"I thought he would kill me," she said. "I cried out. I jumped from my bed and I am still amazed that I turned out to be stronger than him."

The Begum

The bodyguard attacked the attractive widow of the Aga Khan III—the Ismaili Moslem leader who died last year—in the mistaken belief she had kidnaped or harmed his 5-year-old master, Prince Abdullah ben Saud.

The begum had been visiting Egypt in connection with the mausoleum being built for her husband at Aswan, on the Nile near the Egyptian-Sudanese frontier.

She talked with reporters here on her way from Cairo to Nice, on the French Riviera. She exhibited bruises and contusions on the shoulder, face and arms, but said doctors assured her the injuries were not serious.

Shaking her head as if still dazed, she gave this account of the incident:

She was staying in Room 212 at fashionable Shepheard's Hotel, Cairo; the prince was three floors directly above in room 512.

The prince's bodyguard, Salem Abdullah, got off the elevator on the wrong floor early Monday and entered the begum's suite by mistake.

Seeing her in what he thought was his master's bed, he shouted angrily "Where is the young prince?" and began beating her.

"It was a terrible experience," she said. "It was about 1 a. m. I was half asleep in my room when a Negro man entered from the drawing room.

"He jumped on me and attacked me with a plastic box, one of those boxes that candies come in. I thought he would kill me. . . .

"He was not drunk. . . . I understand now he lost his head because he had not seen the child. But I did not know it then.

"I cried and cried and at last someone arrived and saved me. . . . It has been terrible."

Police and hotel attendants seized the assailant and got the explanation of the bodyguard's confusion. They had been summoned by the begum's secretary, Miss Freda Meyer.

C.P. Manship Heads Dixie Publishers

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP)—Charles P. Manship Jr., publisher of the Baton Rouge (La.) State-Times and Morning Advocate, Tuesday was elected president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn.

Manship succeeds Millard Cope, publisher of the Marshall (Tex.) News Messenger, who becomes chairman of the board.

Hugh B. Patterson Jr. was re-elected treasurer and Tom Tanner again was named secretary-manager by the board of directors.

The publishers were told in an address Tuesday that newspapermen have a selling job to do in attracting talented young people.

Jack Tarver, president of The Atlanta Journal and Constitution said, "We have de-glamorized and belittled the profession, instead of pointing up its advantages."

Tarver said an internship program in Atlanta has produced three top executives and good results in developing career newspapermen.

In another address, Benson Ford, vice president of the Ford Motor Co., declared that in the postwar period "we have been prey to extremes of optimism and despair."

"I am convinced that business can and should do a more effective job of limiting booms and busts," Ford said. "Business itself is just as much prey to psychological forces as is the general public."

Ford declared that inflation serves no one and said when profits sag too far, "industry pulls in its horns and we face a new set of problems."

Hinged Bus for 200

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities Tuesday promised Moscow bus riders an innovation—a 200-passenger trolley bus with a hinge in the middle. The Soviet Tass news agency said the new bus would have four entrances, three exits and heat for winter passengers. It said the vehicle would be hinged in the middle to help it around corners.

One School Law Is Asked for State

school districts. What I have in mind here is to prevent a federal court suit being brought against the state board as a means of desegregating the state as a whole in one suit."

He added that since "no overall code revision of the school laws has been undertaken for 40 years, the code should be rewritten as one body of law rather than a hodgepodge of separate and independent acts."

Hall offered to draft proposed legislation with aid of a committee, and upon recommendation of Purcell, the board voted to ask the Legislature to authorize such a study.

A short time later, while newsmen were temporarily absent, the board engaged in a frank, off-the-record discussion of the situation in light of Supreme Court integration decrees. It was learned that the discussion disclosed some sharp differences of opinion among members as to what, if anything, can be done.

Board members had no specific legislation to propose to the 1959 Legislature, but Whitman said the General Assembly should be told "what is needed to run the schools and it should be factual and not tailored to fit anyone's political program."

He added that "this board and this department would then be on record as not having failed to make needs of the schools known. If they fail to furnish the money, then it's their responsibility."

Later, Whitman declared, "It is not the responsibility of this board to provide the funds. That is the responsibility of the Legislature and it should be placed squarely where it belongs."

Purcell said he is preparing factual and documented information on school needs for submission to the state auditor.

Rep. Smith Vows Local Option Bill

could not support legislation which would:

"1. Destroy our public schools.

"2. Place in the hands of any one man, whoever he might be, unlimited power to shut down our public schools and dole out our school money.

"3. Provide for the lease, sale, transfer or other disposition of public school properties without any statutory safeguards to protect the public interest . . .

"4. Substitute for our present accredited schools a grant of money to be applied toward an education of unknown quality, in unspecified locations, for an uncertain school year . . .

"5. Deny the right of peaceful assembly, petition or open discussion relative to the school problem."

Asked from the floor whether he favored "public white schools" or "public integrated schools," Smith replied:

"That question has already been resolved. I am for preserving our public schools."

HITS PRESENT BILLS

Smith heavily assailed bills now on the books "that will tie the hands of our fine governor-elect and force the closing of our public schools."

Governor-elect Vandiver, he said, "is a victim of circumstances."

Smith added, however, that recent federal court decisions "have completely changed the picture" and that Vandiver is now "faced with an entirely new situation in which private schools have absolutely no part."

Smith said his remarks were not addressed to "those with ample means who can send their children to private schools already in existence" but to "the average Georgia unable to pay the prohibitive cost of private school education."

TO ALL THE PEOPLE

"I want to say to all the people of Georgia," Smith said, "that your schools will be closed when those in Atlanta are closed."

Rep. Smith received a resounding ovation at the close of his speech and a sizable segment of the audience filed by the speaker's stand to shake his hand.

Meanwhile, about 300 persons at a meeting of the Cascade Elementary School PTA voted by a 5-to-1 margin to approve a resolution endorsing the local option plan urged by Mayor Hartsfield.

Earlier Tuesday, the West End-Cascade Heights Civitan Club adopted a similar resolution asking the Fulton County legislature delegation to introduce a bill giving Atlanta voters the right to decide the public school question.

Virginia Nears School Showdown

U.S. Supreme Court in the Little Rock, Ark., case. These rulings have clearly indicated that the federal judiciary will tolerate no evasive schemes to thwart the high court's 1954 decision that racial segregation in the public schools is unconstitutional.

The other factor is that "massive resistance" already has left 13,000 Virginia children without public schools and could result in closing down all of the schools in the state.

CLAMOR RISES

Public clamor has been rising in Norfolk, Front Royal, Charlottesville and northern Virginia to keep the schools open, even if it means token integration.

Lindsay Almond

Although segregationists in southern Virginia, where the Negro population is heaviest are implacably opposed to yielding an inch to the federal courts and the NAACP, a local option plan seems to be gaining favor.

What amounts to a local option proposal was recommended last week by editor Kilpatrick.

This editor, who once proposed "interposition" of state law against federal power in the desegregation controversy, is just as opposed to integration as he ever was.

But Kilpatrick said last week that Virginia must keep its "war" flexible and risk "some degree of integration," unless the "war" was to be lost "by our own bullheadedness."

SCHOOLS SHUT

The present crisis in Virginia's schools came about at the beginning of the fall term when Negroes won admission in federal court first to a school in Front Royal and then to others in Charlottesville and Norfolk.

Under the "massive resistance" law, Gov. Almond promptly shut those schools down. They still are closed and about half of the 13,000 children involved are receiving make-shift education in private facilities.

NAACP leaders announced they would challenge the validity of the school closing law in federal court.

Apparently uncertain whether the law would stand up in U.S. courts, Gov. Almond and Atty. Gen. Albertis Harrison arranged for a test in state courts, to forestall NAACP action.

PARENTS SUE

But, with 10,000 children out of school in Norfolk alone, a group of white parents filed suit against the law themselves in federal court. This case will be heard first, since U.S. judges refused to delay it until the state courts had ruled.

Since the children of Norfolk are being deprived of a public education while others are still going to school elsewhere in Virginia, the Norfolk suit claims the state law is discriminatory and invalid.

Attorneys Edmund D. Campbell of Arlington and Archie L. Boswell of Norfolk, counsel for the Norfolk white students, contend the state law is unconstitutional because it denies educational opportunities to some pupils while others remain in class.

A referendum is scheduled in Norfolk to determine whether the citizens there want segregated or integrated schools, but its result will have little force of law.

NEW PROGRAM

Meanwhile, there is some speculation that the federal court in Norfolk might force the local school board there to admit some Negroes to white schools before the state can draft a new program of resistance.

Under another state law, however, Gov. Almond could close all the Norfolk schools if he thinks peace is being threatened by the presence of federal officers. These would not have to be military officers, but could be U.S. marshals.

Involved in the state's own test suit against itself is not only a school-closing law but another which automatically cuts off state funds to any school that is returned to local control and operated on an integrated basis. A delegation representing 6,190 Norfolk citizens petitioning for the reopening of their schools called on Gov. Almond in Richmond a few days ago but got scant comfort from the harassed governor.

HANDS ARE TIED

Almond was sympathetic but said that other Virginians felt differently from the Norfolk delegation. In effect he told them that under the massive resistance laws, his hands are tied and that more school closings are in prospect.

When the Norfolk group argued that North Carolina has avoided massive attack by avoiding massive resistance and admitting a few Negroes to white schools, Almond reminded them that Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, has been urging North Carolina Negroes to press harder for more complete integration.

The governor sadly said that the federal government may have the power to force integration on Virginia but that he does not think the federal government has the right to do so.

Newspapers in Norfolk, Lynchburg and Roanoke also called for a shift away from massive resistance. The Richmond Times-Dispatch said it was unchanged in its determination to resist what it called the tyranny of the U.S. Supreme Court, but added that "We must now reconsider and realign our echelons of defense."

NEW POSITION

That paper declared that' "We have been fighting in effect on the enemy's own terms, under conditions and restrictions most favorable to him, and unfavorable to us. This is suicidal. We must now find another position from which to fight, with ground for maneuver, to gather our strength and renew the battle."

Editor Kilpatrick of the News-Leader said he believes new laws must be steadily devised if educational opportunity is to be preserved and calamity is to be avoided.

"It is possible," he added, "that some public schools in Virginia may be coerced into some degree of integration, but I do not believe such schools would last for very long."

Although Kilpatrick, in a New England debate with NAACP counsel Thurgood Marshall, subsequently declared the South should and will continue to fight race mixing, here is what he proposed in the Virginia situation:

1. Provisions for city or county referendums on whether the locality would close some or all of its public schools to prevent integration.

2. Laws permitting any child at any time to accept a tuition grant from the state for private schooling rather than to attend a public school.

3. Change existing laws on surplus property disposal so that surplus school buildings and equipment "could be more easily sold for the benefit of private educational institutions."

4. Eliminate "every aspect of compulsion in our school laws," including the constitution, regarding schools, so that "we can come up with defenses resilient and flexible."

5. "If better laws can be found in the light of changed conditions, then we are not being brave or loyal or defiant—we are merely being cynical and quixotic—in refusing even to consider them."

day at the 2½-hour news conference, attended by 300 Western and Communist newsmen.

A reporter for Tass, the Soviet news agency, asked what anti-Soviet activities were being carried out in West Berlin.

J. V. Beburov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy who was conducting the news conference, turned the question over to a former Soviet army officer who allegedly deserted to the West but later decided he wanted to go back home.

The officer, I. V. Ovchinnikov, got up in the glare of Communist television lights and charged "The territory of West Berlin is being used for subversive activities against the German Democratic (East Germany) and the Soviet Union."

Stevenson Reports on Russia

'Overtake U.S.' Is Slogan Of Industrializing Soviet

old peasants sold eggs and berries, munched black bread and dried fish, and looked like characters out of Tolstoy. Then we visited a huge new hydroelectric dam built by the peasants' sons and rode for many miles on the great river in a boat of the future, a sleek 90-pasenger "hydrofoil rocket" that skims along above the waves on submerged "wings" at 50 miles per hour.

THE REAL RUSSIA

Which is the real Russia—the old or the new? Both are, of course, but I think that we will do well to think of it in terms of the jet airliners and not the donkeys, the hydrofoil boat and not the crumbling river villages, the engineer sons rather than the peasant fathers. For it is this new, changing, expanding Russia of big industry, advanced science and new frontiers, of grandiose plans and prospects, which today confronts us as an ambitious rival.

The Soviets say that their gross national product will soon approximate half of ours and that by 1965 the Communist bloc will produce more than half of the world's industrial goods. Much has been written about this rapid development, the emphasis on heavy industry, the neglect of consumer goods, the rate of growth, the successes and failures. Let me just report a few impressions of what I saw from Moscow to mid-Siberia.

SYMBOL OF RIVALRY

In Leningrad the Elektrosila works makes generators up to 150,000 kw. capacity. Among the 10,000 employes are 4,000 women. When I say that the symbol of Russia today is "Men Working," I mean women, too! I saw them doing everything from mending roads to forging steel and precision machining.

From the first plant to the last the lay visitor has a feeling of intensity and concentration among the workers, and also inefficiency. Greater efficiency is a universal problem in Soviet industry, which often uses two workers to match the product of one American.

Almost 3,000 miles eastward near Novosibirsk, a fast growing, young city of 800,000, we saw some of these generators being installed in the most northerly large-scale hydroelectric project in the world. The dam across the Ob River, which flows into the Arctic, is three miles long, the first of a series of dams to harness the power of this great waterway. A complete town has been built nearby and work goes on right through the bitter Siberian winter that lasts from October to May.

TOASTS TO PEACE

But that summer day it was 90 degrees, and our tour ended on a boat on the lake behind the dam — with sturgeon, caviar, champagne and toasts to peace and friendship.

Where will the power go? To supply the industries of Novosibirsk and to electrify a portion of the Trans-Siberian railroad. How much will the power cost to produce? The figures were meaningless because the government builds the dam and there is no factor for interest or amortization of the investment.

How much do the workers get? One thousand to 2,000 rubles per month, or $100 to $200 at our tourist rate of exchange. But the salary of our guide, the very able "chief of construction," was harder to figure. With bonuses but without perquisites, perhaps $18,000 a year, and his taxes are only about 6 per cent!

As we left we walked beneath a large signboard inscribed with Lenin's words: "Communism is the Soviet power plus electrification." By 1972 the U.S.S.R. aims to be producing more power than we do now.

BIG INDUSTRIAL BUILDUP

Although Premier Khrushchev has recently hinted at a cutback in the ambitious and expensive hydroelectric and atomic power program, he promises to invest as much in industry in the next seven years as in the whole 40 years of Soviet rule.

If Novosibirsk was moved to the other side of the world it would be somewhere in Hudson Bay. But the harsh climate doesn't seem to retard the industrial growth which, like all of the interior, got such impetus from the Nazi thrust into European Russia. Here at the Efremov works we saw enormous drills, presses, planers, cutters, pumps. "Because you wouldn't sell to us, we have made our own," an irritable factory manager said to me. And they surely have! The packing crates were labeled for many foreign lands, especially China and North Korea.

MODERN RED TOOLS

In Russian factories you see many American, British and German machines, reminder of the brisk trade of 25 years ago and of 15 billion dollars of American lend-lease aid during the war. But now they are making their own and one by one the old foreign machines are being replaced by modern Soviet tools.

Although Novosibirsk is off limits for foreigners, here as elsewhere our hosts imposed no restrictions on photographs, and my sons, Borden and John Fell, took anything they wished in the factories and out.

But the most interesting thing about Novosibirsk is the "City of Science" which is being built on the Ob River 15 miles away to house 25,000. The purpose of this enormous concentration of scientists, institutes and scholars is not just education. That is secondary; the objective is the economic exploration and development of the vast Siberian treasure house where, they say, the industrial output already exceeds the total output of czarist Russia.

WHERE ASIA BEGINS

A thousand miles west of Novosibirsk is Sverdlovsk, "capital of the Urals," where Europe ends and Asia begins. A mining center for 200 years, this old town was formerly called Ekaterinberg, and here in 1918 the exiled Czar and his family were shot in a cellar, as Adm. Kolchak's liberating army approached from Siberia. We peeked in the house, now a "party school," but they wouldn't let us see the cellar.

Here, as everywhere, in spite of the strident "Hands off Lebanon" propaganda, the people were friendly and we were entertained violently. Proudly they showed us a gigantic new statue of Lenin, the large polytechnic institute and huge new housing developments. I was fascinated by the museum exhibiting the amazing mineral resources of the Urals. The clown and the wild horsemen in the circus I shall never forget, nor the children's puppet theater in the garden of the once great mansion of a mining magnate.

LAST WAR TANK

But Sverdlovsk's industry is more important. The "Uralmash" factory, where the last tank built in the war decorates the entrance, employes 16,000 to make machinery for heavy industry, including blast furnaces and rolling mills for India. Like most Soviet plants this one works three eight-hour shifts and a 46-hour week (six hours on Saturdays). But, following the lead of iron and steel, all Soviet industry is now shifting over to a seven-hour day and 41-hour week (six hours on Saturday), and without cutting the wage level.

There seems to be universal agreement between government, management and labor that "productivity must go ahead" of wage increases, to use the phrase of the able director of Uralmash and the equally able chairman of the trade union committee.

BOLD, NEW SCHEME

But the big news in Russia is Khrushchev's reorganization of industry, which was formerly managed in every detail from large cumbersome centralized ministries in distant Moscow. Those fortresses of Stalin's bureaucracy were disbanded last year under Khrushchev's bold new scheme for decentralized management of industry, and now most of Russia's 200,000 enterprises are run by 106 regional economic councils.

We visited some of them. The chief of the council for the province of Sverdlovsk in the Urals is Sergei Stepanov. He used to be minister of transport machinery in Moscow. Now with some 30 other executives, who also formerly worked in Moscow, and a staff of 1,500, his regional council manages 500 factories and construction projects employing 600,000 people in a province about the size of Great Britain. This council, in turn, is subordinate to the State Planning Committee, the famous Gosplan, located in Moscow. The principles of central planning and control are still at the heart of the Soviet system, but the operational management has been decentralized.

OUT WITH WASTE

When I later talked with Mr. Khrushchev, he told me frankly that the old system of centralized management was "impossible." You can't run the industry of such a big country from one center, he said emphatically, and added that the effort to do it had only caused paralysis, duplication and waste while able men in the outlying areas sat around waiting for directives from above. "Now we have freed ourselves from the routine current work in order to concentrate on the larger problems."

The story was pretty much the same everywhere. As a plant director in Siberia put it, "a factory couldn't even sell a horse without Moscow's permission." At Gorky the young director of an auto plant employing 45,000 (formerly called the Molotov works until he fell from political grace) said: "Now I can build what I need when I need it; before I had to get approval from Moscow."

The plant directors and regional council chairmen struck me for the most part as very able. These are the "new Soviet men." Usually engineers by training, they are the most highly paid people in the country, next to the intellectuals and top scientists. One of them said to me, "Profit is indispensable to production," and then added proudly—"I make a great deal of money."

ALL ARE REDS

They are all members of the Communist party and they take it for granted that "the party is the directing and guiding force of the national economy and its decisions are mandatory." Yet they seem to have little interest in ideology and politics. Their job is production and their interests are technical. Essentially practical and realistic, this managerial class has wrought the miracle of Soviet economic development.

Their approval of Khrushchev's reforms was uniform. But in Russia everyone approves of everything until it is suddenly changed, and then they vigorously denounce what yesterday they vigorously approved. Yet there can be no doubt of the improvement and they claim an 11 per cent increase in the first half of this year over last.

But there are bugs still to be ironed out. "Sectionalism" has been the biggest problem. The government works out production plans for all the regions and the interrelations between the regions. At first the new regional councils were more interested in overfulfilling their own goals (there is a bonus for overfulfillment) than helping other regions fulfill theirs.

NEW 7-YEAR PLAN

Mr. Stepanov illustrated:

"The Sverdlovsk region is rich in timber. Ukraine and Uzbekistan need timber. But some Sverdlovsk officials want all the local timber for local uses. As the old Russian proverb goes, 'Your own shirt is closer to your body,' and to want to look after yourself first is only natural. But the regional councils must keep the interests of the state as a whole constantly in mind."

Announcement of the new Soviet seven-year plan was long overdue. But Khrushchev has recently given us a little preview: The goals of 1972 will almost be reached by 1965 in steel, iron ore, cement, woolen goods, shoes, etc. Such spectacular growth must foresee even better results from the reorganization. And it looks as though the hard-working Russians were in for a lot more hard work — to catch up with America.

But what of their living and working conditions? What has this rapid industralization of a big backward country cost in terms of liberties and living standards? I will have something to say about this in my next report.

Fulton Grand Jury on the bombing case they had been taken by the detectives "to the office" of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here for questioning and have been compelled to submit to lie detector tests against their will.

The defendants—Kenneth Chester Griffin, George Allen Bright, Robert Bolling and Richard Bolling and Wallace H. Allen—claim that the FBI has "no authority or interest" in their case because it does not involve violation of a federal law.

The defendants said they sought the order because they were informed in Fulton Superior Court Tuesday, through their counsel, they were to be taken to the FBI office or to the city jail for questioning and identification by a witness.

Once taken out of the Fulton jail, they would be "forced to appear before "persons whom they cannot see, for purposes of pretended identification," the five men contended.

They asked for a restraining order to prevent the sheriff or city police officers from removing them from the county jail and taking them elsewhere for questioning or identification purposes.

Fulton Adopts Quarry Blasting Rules

Regulations controlling the operation of quarries in Fulton County's unincorporated areas have been adopted by county commissioners in answer to citizens' complaints about a quarry operation near Red Oak.

The eight-point regulations, among other things, limit to 6,000 pounds the amount of explosives that can be used in a single blast or series of blasts.

Also regulated are the time of blasts, quarry operating hours, personnel supervising blasting, weather conditions under which blasts may be set off, filing of blasting reports, dust-preventive measures, storage and quarry license fees.

Under weather conditions, the commissioners require that blasting can be done "only when the ceiling is broken or open. No blasts shall be made during a rain or overcast."

Low-hanging clouds increase the shock and noise level of blasts, the commissioners say.

Quarry operators also are required to notify the county public works director one day in advance of intent to set off blasts.

The regulations were adopted by the commissioners in the wake of citizens' requests to close down the Thames Quarry off Buffington road. They contended the quarry operation is a nuisance.

Four big reasons why

FORD IS OUTSELLING ALL OTHER '59 CARS

AT THE BRUSSELS WORLD'S FAIR, the 59 Fords were awarded the Gold Medal for styling elegance by the Comité Français de l'Elégance.

The world's best-selling car is the car with Thunderbird elegance

In the great styling decision of the year, the American public has already shown a clear preference for the new Fords. Ford sales are way ahead of all competition.

What makes the 59 Ford such an immediate success? One prime reason, heard in showrooms from coast to coast, is "good taste." There is the classic simplicity of the Thunderbird-inspired design—the clear-cut clean lines that are pure automobile.

There is a kind of beautiful good sense, too, in the design of the new Ford that goes far beyond just good looks. Ford cars are built for people—to sit in, to drive in, to ride in—with comfort. And a Ford is to enjoy, with smooth quiet power always on demand. Result? A fresh, elegant new kind of car.

ANYONE CAN FIT IN A FORD: Our cars are built for people—full-size people who want space to stretch out. And all passengers ride in deep-cushion comfort.

The car in hottest demand across the land has greater roominess and comfort

Thousands on thousands of customers have already bought the new Ford over all competition for another compelling reason—it's a true six-passenger car. (The only four-passenger car we recommend is the Thunderbird.) All six passengers in a 59 Ford get plenty of every kind of room—from leg and head to elbow and hip. You can wear picture hats or sombreros, fur coats or mackinaws, and be comfortable. Rear seat passengers in a Ford don't feel they're riding with their feet in a bucket. And the man in the middle has the same deep, soft cushioning beneath him as the other passengers.

Cars are supposed to be made to get in and out of. Well, Ford makes it real easy for you. Compare for yourself in any showroom. Just get in and out of a Ford with its bigger, wider-opening doors.

YOU'LL BE THANKFUL EVERY TANKFUL if you buy the new Ford, for you'll save up to a dollar a tankful with new engines that run superbly on regular gas.

The No.1 car in sales saves money on gas, on oil, on maintenance bills

A new Ford will save you up to five cents a gallon on gas : : : a dollar on every tankful! No wonder everyone welcomes the big news that all standard Ford engines, Six and Thunderbird V-8, are engineered to give you powerhouse performance on good old low-cost regular gas.

But that's not all—Ford saves you hard cash on oil, too. Every 59 Ford—not just some of them—has a Full-Flow Oil Filter as standard equipment. Result: You can drive a full 4000 miles without an oil change. And Ford has ended once and for all the old problem of waxing your car. The new miracle is called Diamond Lustre Finish, an amazing paint that will stay gleaming bright without waxing—ever! This is another Ford First, of the kind your bank account likes.

THE FAMOUS FORD LOW PRICES have already made a hit, because only in Fords will you find value and beauty coming together at down-to-earth prices!

The most popular American car is priced as much as $102.75 lower

Ford costs you less right down the line than the competition. This is a simple fact, if you'll take the time and trouble to shop and compare. This year, by law, the manufacturers suggested retail price must be posted on every car. All you have to do is look for yourself, and you'll see that the total suggested retail price of a Ford, equipped with radio, heater and automatic transmission, is as much as $102.75 less than the major competition! And, if you want an air-conditioned car, you can save up to $219.85.

All this means that if you want a car with Thunderbird-inspired styling, really roomy comfort, the firmest, safest ride in its field, great trunk space, and that famous Thunderbird V-8 performance (or the most modern Six in the industry)—all this with hard-cash economy—then the car to buy is the 59 Ford.

Wesleyan Up in Arms Over Firing

Wesleyan College, an 122-year-old Methodist-supported school, at Macon, found itself in an uproar Tuesday when students and faculty protested the firing of an English professor.

The board of trustees of Wesleyan met behind closed doors later and ruled that Dr. Thomas F. Gossett, now in his fifth year as professor of English and literature, be "temporarily relieved of all his duties . . . and his faculty status be suspended pending further consideration . . ."

Dr. Gossett was fired Nov. 14, but a faculty appeal to President B. Joseph Martin resulted in a special session of the trustees to consider the matter.

The trustees issued a statement that the dismissal notice given by the executive committee of the trustees be "held in abeyance" until Dec. 17.

The college would not say why the professor was fired.

Rhodes Fund Grows

Amateur radio operators from Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and Tennessee are contributing to an education fund for the orphaned children of a fellow ham operator, Joseph Clem Rhodes, 30, who was killed, along with his wife, Evelyn, 28, and his 2-year old son, Jeffrey, in a plane crash this week. Rhodes' other two children, Ronnie, 8, and Barry, 7, are now living with their grandfather in Washington, Ga. Andrew J. Farr, Hapeville, said Tuesday that Georgia hams first started to raise money for a floral tribute but decided the education fund would be more appropriate. . . . Walker Bound Over

The University of Georgia now has funds totaling $347,600 for training high school science teachers, President O. C. Aderhold announced. "The University's scientific tradition, its record of scientific support from outside agencies, and the imminence of the completion of the $12.5 million science center," Aderhold said, "are cause for encouragement in this age of science." All of the funds have been donated by the National Science Foundation, he said. . . . Prentice Walker, 18-year old Dublin Negro, has been bound over to the Laurens County grand jury by a coroner's jury in the death of Walker's schoolmate, Jim Butler, 16, Coroner B. H. Savannah Airspace

The Atlanta Regional Airspace Committee, meeting in Savannah Wednesday, will discuss plans on how best to clear the air of civilian air traffic in the Savannah area which might interfere with takeoff and flight of the 1,200-mph supersonic jets based at the Marine Crops Air Station in nearby Beaufort, S.C. At present, there is a temporary restriction on civilian flights in this area.

"BABY, I THINK YOU'RE ADORABLE"
Diamonds Are a Dog's Best Friend

Pampered Poodle Set Take To Mink and Lame

By JOYCE GEMMILL

If you think you're "going to the dogs," relax and enjoy it! According to a spokesman for the pampered poodle set, the howl-and-growl group have finally come into their own.

Latest addition to the Atlanta fashion front is a fancy dress and beauty salon catering to the oodles of poodles planning a heavy social season.

Owned and designed by Mrs. Charlotte Schoenbach and Mrs. Barbara Jones, the new shop would put the fur-paneled boudoir of Marilyn Monroe's to shame. The interior is entirely in French pink with just enough gold sprinkled here and there to make you wonder if Madame Du Barry had ever slept there.

DOGGIE WARDROBE

The doggie wardrobe on display was designed to aid and abet the poodle on the prowl. Evening wraps and capes in gold lame were created for the opera-goer or the poodle that spends her spare time doing whatever poodles do in their spare time.

Mink-trimmed sweaters don't do as much for the doggy sweater set as they do for their human counterparts but mink is mink and women are women and never the twain shall part. Tiny rain and snow shoes with matching raincoats were dreamed up for the doggie that might dream of going out on dreary days. Flannel pajamas have their fling too, when it's time to retire or stay up all night serenading the neighbors.

Little boy poodles have their doggy day too, as sailor suits appear on the fashion scene accompanied with little sailor hats. For the doggie that wants to go west, there's a ranch outfit with cowboy hat to match while jeweled collars are no respecters of sex.

BEAUTY BOOTHS

Over in the beauty booths the "girls" wile away the hours catching up on the latest gossip as they indulge themselves in shampoos, the latest in tinting adventures and quaint coiffures. No high-principled poodle would dream of leaving without a pedicure and a whiff of some misleading "parfum."

Of primary interest to spectators and visiting male poodles is the feminine model in the window who answers to the name of "Sabrena." A lady with a very aristocratic background, she was forced to take to modeling when she found herself in dire circumstances. Sabrena has all the grace and poise of a high-fashion mannequin and changed costumes as rapidly as the fashion pace-setter at a Christian Dior showing.

We forgot to tell you that for the doggy who has to "take it on the lam" because of tax evasion or refusal to come home after a "night out" there's a tiny suitcase large enough to handle a suitable wardrobe and a sirloin steak.

Party-going poodles will be delighted to hear that a poodle party has been planned in the very near future. Highlight of the social event will be hamburger cakes aglow with tiny candles.

Time for a Gay Color Suit To Wear Under Fur Coats

This is the time of year when everyone wants something gay and colorful to wear under dark winter or fur coats. For this I suggest one of the new suits that are just arriving in the shops.

These are in lightweight fabrics so that you may wear them into spring—in lacy or slightly looped weaves. And the colors are marvelous—lilac, deep turquoise blues, geranium, strawberry red, lime green, and the pale blonde shade that is such a great favorite right now.

Jackets for the most part are short and straight, reaching just below the waistline, and skirts are slim, too, with perhaps a few pleated darts at the belt to give a slight roundness to the silhouette.

Martha Carson's Not a Girl, She's An Explosion, Allen Says

By BETTY CARROLLTON

A lovely redhead who generates happiness with her every movement was introduced to Atlantans this week. Introduced is the right word, for, although she's more familiar to Atlantans than to audiences anywhere else, this is a new Martha Carson — a glamorous, polished performer, a dynamic personality who ran away from heartbreak to find the happiness she so generously shares today.

The vibrant songstress (who prompted Steve Allen to declare "she's not a girl, she's an explosion," following an appearance on his TV show) has warm memories of Atlanta. She's still grateful to her loyal Georgia fans, despite the heartbreak that once marred her life here.

The Kentucky - born beauty was with WSB for nearly 10 years, and she had a wide following of fans who thrilled to the stirring spirituals she sang with her first husband, James. Billed as James and Martha Carson, they were as much a part of Georgians' listening pleasure as are Les Paul and Mary Ford today. Then came disillusionment that dissolved her marriage.

NEW PERSONALITY

Martha never dwells on that phase of her life, and, indeed, it's hard to reconcile the new personality with the heartweary girl who was forced to "stand on my own two feet," after a barbed letter from an Atlanta listener "really knocked me into the ground."

"I'd been in the entertainment business for 10 years," Martha recalled, "but at that particular time I had absolutely no self-confidence. I felt so terribly helpless!"

It was then she wrote the first of nearly 200 songs, many of which have been recorded by other artists. The tears flowed while she penned "Satisfied," but "when the song was finished, the tears were finished, for all time."

NOWHERE TO TURN

"I had no one to turn to, but God," she said simply.

And through the faith instilled during her childhood Martha began a new life. Although she's no "Pollyanna" making an obvious effort to see good in everything, Martha lives in an aura of happiness that reaches out to enfold those about her.

It was her song-writing talents that took Martha from Atlanta to New York, where eventually she appeared on all the top radio and TV shows, then at the nation's top night clubs.

Martha confines her act to the spirituals she renders with such sincerity, whether rousing or tender. She's currently appearing at the Domino Lounge in Atlanta. Spirituals out of place in a night club? Not the way Martha Carson presents them.

It was here she met handsome Xavier Cosse in January 1952, when, through correspondence, he booked her for a series of appearances in Georgia and Florida. She first saw him during a rehearsal in Atlanta.

"I didn't know who he was," Martha recalled. "But every time I looked at him, he was looking at me. Finally, he introduced himself and asked if I'd have dinner with him following the show in Florida the next day."

MARRIED LATER

They were married several months later, now live in Nashville with their two handsome children, Rene Paul, 2½, and Andre Michele, 7 months old.

"Both children are just full of rhythm," Martha said proudly.

Rene has stolen the spotlight from his gifted mother more than once: He was in the audience with his father during Martha's concert at a Nashville park last summer. When he heard the first strains of the music, Rene darted from his dad's side, rushed onstage where he started pounding on the drums to delight the audience.

Rene made "a very professional bow," that had photographers speedily clicking their shutters. The following day, it was Rene, not Martha, who made the front page of Nashville papers with the caption: "Two-Year-Old Steals show From Mother." He slipped onstage during another of Martha's performances several months later, and, after taking several bows, he confided to Martha:

"Mother, I so tired."

THE BETTER HALF by Bob Barnes

Her Father Marched With Grenadier Guards

By YOLANDE GWIN

Mrs. Walter Aycock pulled the stack of mail from her mailbox at 3218 Argonne Dr. the other morning and as she sorted it, she exclaimed to herself:

"Grand, here is a letter from father!"

"Father" is William Oliver James Bright of London and aside from the usual family type letters which fly across the Atlantic to his daughter here, there was a special message.

"I shall be thinking of you Tuesday night. I too, shall be hearing the stirring music and reliving many happy memories."

ON HAND

Mrs. Aycock, you can be sure, was right on hand for the performance.

"It was much more thrilling knowing that my father was thinking of me back home," she said. "As a child I remember all the neighborhood children would come over and father would teach us how to march and we would stomp up and down the yard, and turn this way and that way. It was wonderful."

Mr. Bright's marching with the children, however, was a far cry from his marching days with the Guards. Here's what his daughter, wife of Atlanta attorney Walter Aycock, said:

"Father went in as a private at the beginning of World War I and was one of the first to win a medal on the battlefields of France. The Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales, was the commanding officer of the Guards then. My father worked up through the ranks and when he left the guards he was a lieutenant."

WOOED WIFE

The young Atlantan said that "several years" after her father retired, he married and continued to live in London. It was while Walter Aycock was on duty in London during World War II that he wooed and won the pretty Joan Bright and brought her to Atlanta to live.

"All the guards had to be six feet tall" said Mrs. Aycock. "Father said he just did make it and since most of the guards were over six feet, they called him 'Titch.' That is the nickname we have in England for a person who is small."

Mrs. Aycock went with her father to see the guards, standing tall and picturesque before Buckingham Palace, while in London last year.

"I was thrilled and proud that my father had served with the guards," she said.

ONLY REGIMENT

The Grenadier Guards, (the first regiment of foot guards) is the only regiment in the British Army to have earned its title directly as a result of the part it played in action. It had the word grenadier included in its title in commemoration of the First Guards having defeated the Grenadiers of the French Imperial Guard at the famous Battle of Waterloo.

This regiment was founded in 1656 in Flanders. In that year King Charles was in exile while England lay under the military dictatorship of Oliver Cromwell. He formed a regiment known as the Royal Regiment of Guards, principally for the protection of the King's person, and recruited from the loyal men who had followed him into exile.

After the King's restoration to the throne the regiment became known as the First Regiment of Foot Guards. It had fought in almost every major campaign of the British Army until the present day.

In 1944, at Dunkirk, which the Regiment garrisoned under King Charles II two hundred and eighty four years before, it defended the perimeter under cover of which the embarkation of the British Army was made. Forty-four Battle Honours are now borne upon the colours of the regiment.

THEY HONEYMOON IN BERMUDA
Mr. and Mrs. Allan H. Bonnell

Miss Ann Carroll Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cox, was married to Allan H. Bonnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Bonnell of Westfield, N.J., at an afternoon ceremony solemnized at the Church of the Epiphany.

Dr. Norman Gore was the officiant and he was assisted by the Rev. W. F. Robey of St. Petersburg.

Mrs. W. W. Laurence was matron of honor for her niece, and the bridegroom's sister, Sara Lou, was bridesmaid.

Aubrey C. Tobey of Cambridge, Mass., attended the bridegroom as best man, and ushering were Donald Cameron of Mystic, Conn., and the bride's uncle, W. W. Laurence.

The bride's gown of white taffeta was trimmed in Chantilly lace and satin. Her illusion veil was attached to a lace and taffeta cap, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

I'm Vaguely Surprised To Be on the Payroll At All

From the way the mail looks these days city editors over the land in about five years are going to be swamped by a rising tide of girl reporters.

Within the last few weeks I've had a dozen letters from young women who are interested in newspapering as a career. The latest of these comes all the way from Hartsdale, N.Y., from 14-year-old Marion Smith, daughter of those erstwhile Georgians, Stanford and Martha Smith. (Stan, many of you will remember, was the executive secretary of the Georgia Press Assn. and Martha toiled intermittently in the vineyard of The Constitution's Women's Department.)

As attached as I am to city editors, I'm going to enjoy seeing them cope with this new generation of female reporters. Because, from the questions I get, these young maidens are going to be sharp traders, operating with a high degree of practicality, insisting on their rights and not much given to idealistic dreaming over remaking the world.

Almost without exception they want to know first what the job pays, if women get as good assignments and as much money as men and what are the chances of advancement. Are the opportunities as great in the South as in the North, they wonder, and, pursuing this same practical vein, how can I best prepare myself for a career as a reporter?

These questions always put me at a disadvantage and I spend half a morning poking around trying to get together some facts about money and opportunities for advancement. I've never been very alert about these matters for a psychological reason probably. The first day I worked for a newspaper, a 16-year-old high schooler looking for Saturday employment, I was sent to interview a politician about a narcotics bill and became so fascinated by the story I labored over it half the night, not the least conscious of the fact that I was working for nothing. When they later started paying me $5 a week I was so touched that they weren't firing me that I wept. I keep being pleased and vaguely surprised that I'm on the payroll at all. (This is not a feasible attitude, I hasten to say. Employers have a discouraging tendency to accept you at your own evaluation.)

As for the opportunities for women, if a man hires you he must not have any prejudices against women reporters and will give you the same breaks—but maybe not the same pay—that he gives the boys. Some editors are leery of girls for the very good reason that from time to time they have encountered fragile types who can't take bad weather or long hours and are squeamish about violence and death. (There are men who feel the same but somehow people either don't find it out or don't hold it against men.)

The matter of reportorial ability apparently doesn't have a thing to do with sex. It's more a matter of native talent, training, curiosity, and perhaps a mixture of pride and responsibility. Good reporters, men or women, are working for themselves more than most people know. The city editor is a fairly omniscient fellow, it's true, but he's not omnipresent. Since you're on the scene and he's not you might get by with a spotty story if you're willing to settle for that. You can miss facts and he might not find it out. You can do an indifferent writing job and he probably won't fire you, taking into consideration that your feet are wet and you were up all night. He might get somebody to rewrite your story and that's more lacerating to a reporter with pride than anything else. Good reporters are their own severest critics, and most relentless taskmasters.

What do you like most about it, they always ask. That's easier than any question about money or hours or advancement. You like its aliveness. Newspapers deal with what's going on NOW—life and death, loving and living, plain people and great people, crooks and statesmen, heartbreak and high comedy. It can be dull but I can't remember when. What other hired hand can say so much?

Her Problem Is No Clothes!

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

My problem has to do with clothes. I don't have as many clothes as other girls and I try to pay for most of my things with money I earn from baby sitting. Mom says that when she was a girl she only had two dresses but, Mrs. Ricker, we are living in different times and people earn more money.

How can I ever look nice if I don't have some decent clothes? I love my parents dearly but at times they just don't seem to understand.

If Mom had only two dresses when she was a girl, she surely hasn't forgotten how difficult it was to cope with such a situation. However, just because you have a smaller wardrobe than some girls, that doesn't mean (necessarily) that you are in the same fix.

Of course I have no way of knowing how much money you spend on clothes but I do know that many girls with small wardrobes manage to look "nice" and smartly dressed. This can be done by taking advantage of sales and buying wisely. Mix 'n' match separates help to give the illusion of a large wardrobe.

Blouses and dresses should always be freshly laundered and all clothing should be clean and well pressed. Shoes should be shined and in good repair. Personal cleanliness is a must—a daily bath or shower, just enough make-up to look well (never smeary or too heavy) hair a shining halo, teeth sparkling and nails clean and well shaped.

A girl who will do these things often can look better dressed than the girl who spends three times as much money on clothes but is sloppy about her appearance.

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only—as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

"They laughed when I cleaned out the garage!"

They said all I'd get was a backache.

But I fooled 'em!

I found all that junk in the garage wasn't junk at all. It looked useless to us because we couldn't use it. But when I took a good look I found a lawn mower that was still good for a lot of miles of lawn mowing, a chair that wasn't nearly all sat out, a buggy that could still wheel a baby around many blocks . . . lots of things that other folks could surely use and would probably like to buy at a savings.

So, while I cleaned out the garage, I made a list of all the things that were taking up space. And when I finished, I called The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution Want Ad Department at JA. 3-3636. The nice girl who answered the phone helped me word my ad. It started the next day.

You know, all those things were sold in just a couple of days. The folks who bought them seemed real glad to get them at a good price, and I made a good bit of money myself.

Guess who's laughing now. I am!

ENGINEERING

Outstanding Opportunities in
SPACE SCIENCES
ADVANCED DESIGN

ENGINEERING teams at Northrop are exploring the laws and forces that will determine the interplanetary paths tomorrow. Projects concerning advanced design missiles, space platforms, nuclear research and similar complex tasks reach far into the future and exceed the capabilities of engineers with average experience. Engineering specialists and senior engineers of superior abilities and vision are finding unmatched challenges at Northrop. A limited number of additional positions of highest responsibility requiring advanced degrees or demonstrated capabilities are available in the following areas:

AERODYNAMICS DEVELOPMENT
IN THIS area you will conduct studies in the various fields of aerodynamics design including performance, stability and control, aeroelasticity and related subjects. In addition, you will be working in the fields of flight mechanics and space flight including the investigation of special problems, and the effects of various force fields influencing the vehicle. The results of these studies will be a direct contribution to the design and configuration of advanced weapons.

Aero-Thermodynamics
CHALLENGING positions are open for engineers to perform advanced analyses in boundry layer, heat transfer, mass transfer, jet effects and hypersonic real gas flow fields. Here you will provide technical direction in the field of aero-thermodynamics for advanced design and developed projects, including analytical and experimental program responsibility. You will also develop criteria for the evauation of aero-thermodynamic design aspects of extreme high speed flight.

PROPULSION SYSTEMS PERFORMANCE
IF YOU have advanced propulsion systems experience, you will set up study programs directing other engineers. You should be an engineering specialist familiar with automatic computing techniques and the problems inherent in integrating propulsion systems with over-all vehicle objectives.

AS A senior engineer, major in propulsion or physics with at least five years of experience, you will direct efforts in research investigations and advanced design proposals. You will also perform advanced inlet system design and conduct performance analyses in support of the advanced design effort. You will be responsible for preliminary investigation, the determination of design criteria, and analytical methods in internal aerodynamics and propulsion performance. You will also define the geometry and performance of advanced induction systems for airbreathing engines and develop the requirement for induction systems controls. Experience in testing techniques is extremely desirable. You will set up projects, make analyses of propulsion test data, and direct the efforts of others.

NUCLEAR TECHNOLOGY
A TOP-LEVEL position is available for an experienced nuclear physicist or engineer to direct an expanding group of nuclear technologists. Assignments include reactor analyses, shielding design, dosage calculations, radiation laboratory experimentations, and creative nuclear physics. Excellent positions are also available within this group for specialists in these individual fields.

SPACE SCIENCES
TWO positions are available in this area for qualified engineering specialists with advanced education and experience in the highly technical areas indicated below:

ONE position requires the performance of advanced physical and mathematical research in celestial mechanics, interplanetary and interstellar phenomena, and their relation to gravitational and magnetic field effects; also the physics of interaction and the handling of fixed and kinetic force fields.

THE other requires the performance of advanced physical studies of the lower atmosphere, ionosphere, exosphere and extra-atmospheric environment requiring maintenance of close liaison with current experimental activities, and the performance of geophysical studies involving the spatial force and thermal effects of land and water masses, interbody magnetic fields and the effects of gravity on those fields. Environmental studies will include the kinetics of rarefied gasses, electrical phenomena, dissociation effects, meteors, micrometeors, and the solar and cosmic radiation environment.

NUCLEAR PROPULSION
IF NUCLEAR propulsion is your area of specialization, you will have the opportunity to participate in studies concerned with establishing the most feasible methods of attaining and maintaining outer space flight.

INTELLIGENCE SYSTEMS APPLICATIONS
IF THIS is your field, you will deal with reconnaisance intelligence applications, establish concepts, and be concerned with all types of sensors, such as cameras and optical systems, their characteristics, availability, cost, and performance; electromagnetic devices—similar information on radar and infrared systems; processing phase—storage, transmission, reception, and processing of raw intelligence information.

MISSILE SYSTEMS PRE-DESIGN
IN THIS area you will establish the feasibility of special weapon system concepts. This will involve the study of airbreathing and non-airbreathing propulsion systems, the performance of supersonic and hypersonic vehicles, and related problems of structural design, stability, control, ground support systems, and the integration of all components into a complete weapon system.

THE MEN selected to join Northrop's distinguished engineering staff are even now gaining recognition in their fields. The environment and facilities at Northrop are among the finest in the industry, and are conducive to engineering research leading to rapid technical and professional growth.

CADILLACS
Since production has resumed we are now able to get '58 model Cadillacs practically new. We specialize in this type of car. Buying mostly from around the factory and from Cadillac dealers in large cities, factory officials and individuals. We are getting some of these automobiles with real low mileage. Some with less than five and six thousand miles. Some 90 days to six months old. These automobiles can be bought at savings form $1,400 to $2,300.
Now a lot of people probably would not like the new styles and would go for one of these cars. See them today or any day or night at Clyde Owen. Always one of the largest stocks of Cadillacs of any authorized or independent Cadillac dealer in the South.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Double
Pass	2 ♣	2 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♠ king.

The underlead of an ace in defensive play is frequently made for deceptive purposes in order to put declarer to a guess as to the location of the outstanding honors.

In many cases, however, the underlead is made because of the necessity for finding partner with the card which will give him an entry in a hurry.

In today's hand West executed the play but not with deceptive intent, for the bidding had made it abundantly clear that he held the ace.

Nor was it made to gain immediate entry, for it was evident that dummy's king would win the trick. Actually it was for the purpose of creating a later entry into partner's hand if he happened to have the queen.

Transfer of the lead to partner could be postponed for one round but after that speed was of the essence.

The competitive nature of the bidding is accounted for by the fact that North and South held a part score of 60 points.

West's take-out double elicited a two-club reponse from East but even after West carried the fight into the three level, East felt his values were too barren to continue the contest when North bid three hearts.

West opened the king of spades and East played the five. With the imposing diamond suit in dummy, West felt it was necessary to get East in with reasonable promptness in order to come through the queen of spades declarer obviously held.

While West still held the king of hearts, he maintained control of the hand, so he led a low club. Declarer had no difficulty in going up with the king, but East signaled with the eight.

Declarer felt constrained to try the trump finesse and when West got in with the king of hearts, he led another low club. East's spade return then sent declarer down for a one-trick set.

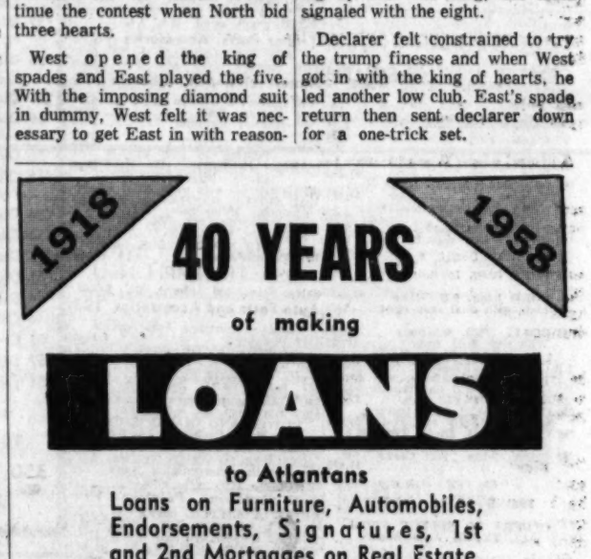
Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle



YOUR STARS TODAY

Daily Guide — There are two major aspects in the gackground of this week, so those with crucial matters on the fire should not let their attention stray. Vigilance will be needed now for those in Leo, Taurus and Scorpio, especially those born around Aug. 9, May 7, Feb. 5, or Nov. 9. These birthdays are very likely to feel further pressures in the middle of December.

Happy Birthday, Scorpio! You are coming into your own in this birthday year ahead, so get your affairs in shape to push into the limelight and harvest favors you have earned in the past few years. There may be changes in career or business developments which call for unexpected moves. Partnerships or personal relationships can be somewhat difficult as the year ends and through to early February, but let mate or any other alliance be a challenge to put you out in front where you should be now. Watch the next few weeks carefully; don't be tempermental or act rashly.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Such portions of our Expressway now in use are overcrowded and the present plan will be obsolete before it is finished."

—Editorial Quote.

The highways run across the land . . . Through valleys, over mountain-peaks . . . Through growing fields and desert sand . . . And over rivers, lakes and creeks . . . They pass along some frightening brink . . . Or where some low place has been filled . . . And looking at them, one might think . . . "This took ten million years to build".

But one would certainly be wrong . . . In thinking that, for we recall . . . It hasn't been so very long . . . Since there were few, or none at all . . . Thanks to the minds and skills of man . . . A net of highways has been spread . . . For after they conceived the plan . . . They went to work and forged ahead.

Where are these men who built and planned? . . . They must have perished from the earth . . . Their skills are now in great demand . . . And we would pay them what they're worth . . . If there be any who remain . . . If there be but a single one . . . We wish they would come back again . . . And help get OUR Expressway done.

Why We Keep Giving To Polio Foundation

Ray Moore, well known to anyone with a 17 or 21-inch living room picture window which can be tuned to WSB-TV, asked National Foundation officials for a good answer to a question which is sure to be asked volunteers soliciting for next January's March of Dimes.

The question was, "Why doesn't the National Foundation just quit, now that the polio situation is well in hand?" Ray assured Foundation officials that HE wasn't asking the question for himself, as he figured he already knew the answer, but he wanted the officials to supply a good one for solicitors.

Joseph Nee, of the national office of the Foundation, answered that the Foundation had spent 20 years building up the organization to combat disease and it would be rather foolish to abandon the organization just because the disease was licked when there were so many other death-dealers still unconquered. There was more to his answer, of course, and he explained the situation fully.

Here's an answer I'd like to pass on to solicitors: "Well, Mr. Smith, you asked me why to keep the Foundation going. You got any children, Mr. Smith? You have, huh? Well, have any of them had polio? No? Well, you know they won't have it because Jonas Salk, working with a Foundation grant, developed a vaccine. OK. Well, the same team that came up with a win aganist that enemy is still in there, ready to take on two or three more. The peace of mind you've got about your children and polio, Mr. Smith, you may be able to spread around among some other diseases if we keep the Foundation going. Dig, Mr. Smith?"

You needn't worry about whether Mr. Smith's children have had polio. If any one of them had, he wouldn't have asked the question in the first place.

Atlanta's Weather Conscious

The 12-year-old boy, speaking with a tone of utter disgust, said into the phone, "Naw, I can't come play football. Gotta wrap up the darn bushes again!"

Atlanta, being a city of homeowners, is weather conscious when it comes to cold snaps that can damage shrubs and flowers. At the newspaper, and I know at the Weather Bureau, any unusual weather brings horticultural questions about possible plant damage.

Stanley Hastings, of guess-which horticultural firm, says that it isn't the cold weather necessarily which damages plants, but a sudden change in the weather from a balmy 50 or 60 or so down to below 20.

"Gradual cooling gives plants a chance to harden and stops the growth processes," Stanley said. "When the change to a hard frost is sudden, the plants don't have this chance to harden, and then damage is done.

Stanley said one or two warm days in normally cold weather are not enough to start the growth processes again. Most damage is done in the spring when a late frost comes after the plants figure it's time to start putting on their summer growth and foliage.

To Erect Death Light

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI)—City officials, alarmed by the rate of traffic accidents, announced Tuesday they would erect a "death light" atop a 90-foot monument in the center of Newcastle. The light, normally white, will be switched to red for three days after every new traffic death.

Official Betrayed Trust---But Still Can Make Amends

QUESTION: Sometime ago I served as the treasurer of the church. From time to time I took small sums of money, intending to repay it as soon as possible. Now another man has been elected to the office and I am ashamed to tell him what I did, but I must repay the amount to balance the record. Can you help me with a suggestion?

ANSWER: You must clear your conscience and keep the record straight. You cannot have peace until you do so. I would suggest that you take into your confidence the pastor of the church. Your problem is certainly one that had some spiritual implications, and you can be confident that he will not betray your confidence.

There is no question about what must be done. It is merely a matter of procedure, and it would be the proper procedure to confide in your pastor. He will be the kind of person you need to include in such a problem. In fact, he has much at stake in every such problem.

A Third League

NEW YORK (NANA)—The baseball financiers run their business with a smug belligerence, as if they were the benefactors of those who supported them with their patronage. Their descriptions of their operations suggest that they maintain institutions dedicated to the public's benefit, and a man ignorant of their practices might confuse the function of a baseball company with the purposes of a free clinic concerned with the healing of flawed bodies and impaired minds. They insinuate that baseball is a summer festival that should be regarded by tax collectors and law-enforcement agencies as much a municipal asset as a school, a park or a bathing beach.

Their profits are seldom mentioned but they publicize their losses with a calculated grief, as if their bleak seasons were the responsibility of the buffs. They expect people to pay to see games even when they are boring pantomimes performed by unskilled athletes. Absence from a ball park is considered a treasonous act by the impresarios.

Cannon

Some even suggest they play for the benefit of circulation managers and offer suggestions how the sports editor should play baseball news. No newspaper ever folded up because a team deserted a city, but the baseball men are offended if a fight story gets a bigger play. There are some exceptions but most of them are greedy hypocrites and they turn as yellow as an egg's yolk if a politician demands their complicated industry should be investigated for abuses of the code under which other fields of commerce operate.

It is possible that they may be intimidated by Mayor Robert Wagner's special baseball committee which recently endorsed the creation of a third big league. The federation, according to William Shea, chairman of the group, would operate under the auspices of what the financiers piously named organized baseball or would try to do it alone as an independent outfit.

—A Frivolous Society of Happy Sportsmen

The committee has been shoved around by Warren Giles, president of the National League and a subservient messenger boy for his eight masters. They stand five to three against expansion of their league to 10 teams, which is the only way New York could get representation. They may be black-jacked by Shea's intention to buck them with franchises in such towns as Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Atlanta, Denver, Toronto, Miami, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Detroit and a couple of California settlements.

As Shea pointed out, the baseball people are soliciting kindnesses from Congress. They want their business to be put in the category of a national toy which would be immune from federal scrutiny. They are lobbying so they will not be declared a monopoly but merely a frivolous society of happy sportsmen engaged in devising joy for the multitudes. Of course, baseball is only a game when it is played on the field, nine men to a side. In the offices it is as much a commercial proposition as a pawn shop.

Congressmen from the states that Bill Shea mentioned as allies in the formation of a third union of teams certainly would have a reason to regard baseball as a monopoly if their constituents were not allowed to participate should they prove they have the resources to put eight teams into action. It is the first time since 1915, when the Federal League was founded, that a substantial force is threatening to bust the lock that the 16 major league corporations have on their dodge.

It is Shea's contention that the league will come into being only if New York will enlist. He explained that there are numerous syndicates in New York eager to hold franchises and their team will be quartered in a stadium on Flushing Meadows. The place was rejected by Walter O'Malley before he lammed to Los Angeles with his firm. Any action by O'Malley must be ignored because he used the offers made by New York as a bat which beat the Los Angeles politicians into line.

—Of Human Bondage, Pensions, Etc.

Naturally, the third league is still remote. There is much to be straightened out, and not the smallest is the matter of where the players will come from. The reserve clause is the baseball merchant's gimmick which puts a player in bondage to a club for as long as it finds him useful. It has never been declared illegal but it has never been opposed by such a congressional block as would develop if baseball financiers refused permits to a third league.

The reserve clause would have to be invalidated because an independent league would have to entice its players from existing payrolls. The right to raid would have to be settled in the courts, which baseball has ducked since it began. Such as Danny Gardella was reimbursed for being exiled after he sold his services to the Mexican League. Others, who were dramatically excluded for life, were forgiven and allowed to perform again in the American and National Leagues when it appeared that lawsuits might expose baseball's obsolete labor relations. But it is doubtful if any guy now in the big leagues would forfeit his rights to a pension, unless a generous profit-sharing scheme was offered as a substitute.

Immense sums will be needed to get a third league going. Baseball hasn't enough skillful players now and both leagues are unbalanced because of the shortage. But the plan will not be ridiculed by me because the committee, attempting to get New York a second team, was forced into this intimidation. There may never be a third league, but if organized baseball fights it for selfish reasons, the whole structure of the game may be razed. It's about time, too.

Lloyd's Scorecard: 71 Plays, 46 Assists

Stoll Lauds Center's Work

By DAN KITCHENS
Special to The Constitution

ATHENS—"Amazing is the word for Dave."

The enthusiast, assistant Georgia coach Cal Stoll, then threw in some more adjectives just for good measure, "durable," "indestructible," "relentless" and a few others.

The object of Stoll's praise was Georgia's great junior center Dave Lloyd who has convinced the Georgia coaching staff that he's the best around in his business.

"In two years of play here, Dave's never missed a ball game," Stoll said. "Only once has he left a game because of injury. That was the South Carolina game this year—and we had to force him off the field then. He was back in the game only a few minutes later, and played the following week. He's as near indestructible as any player I've ever seen."

Stoll had just finished an exhaustive examination of the Auburn-Georgia films, and spread his calculations on the desk as an example of Lloyd's superb play.

"Auburn had the ball for 71 offensive plays, and Dave was in on 46 of those. And you can count the times when he wasn't near the ball on the fingers of one hand," Stoll continued.

Last year, as a sophomore, Lloyd had a fault, Stoll is frank to admit. "He is such a tremendous competitor that his overeagerness sometimes led him to play a little rough. But this year, he's more experienced—and while he still plays for keeps, he's learned to be more careful in questionable situations."

Example in point was the incident at Jacksonville that saw a Florida substitute guard slug Lloyd alongside the head. The pugnacious Gator was ejected from the game, and because Dave did not retaliate, he stayed in the game. It's doubtful that the offender would have emerged so lightly had the slugging come a year earlier.

When the question as to who is the better center, Lloyd or Jackie

Had Best Day Against Tigers

Burkett, Auburn's highly touted pivotman, was put directly to the Georgia assistant line coach, he smiled and said:

"I'm not a fair judge. Naturally I'm partial. But why don't you ask sports writers who covered the game. They were unanimous, I believe, in their opinion."

He might have added "and the 28,301 fans who saw the game." (The 301 were viewers of the game by courtesy of closed circuit TV in Columbus' Municipal Auditorium.)

One other major test remains on the schedule for Lloyd this year. On Nov. 29, Georgia meets Georgia Tech in Sanford Stadium.

Memphis Writer Succumbs at 52

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Walter Stewart, sports editor of the Commercial Appeal, died Tuesday after major surgery to remove a blood clot from his brain. He was 52.

Death ended a sports writing career that began in 1932 and saw him perched in the press box at most major sports spectaculars since then.

Stewart, a bachelor, was taken to the hospital Oct. 23 after his mother found him lying on the floor beside his bed. He underwent two brain operations but remained unconscious until death.

Athletics fascinated Stewart at an early age. He played football and baseball in high school here, and labored in the line at the University of Illinois.

At Illinois he also was an assistant boxing instructor, a member of the wrestling team, threw the hammer and javelin on track squads, served as campus correspondent for several newspapers and washed dishes and sold hot dogs to earn his keep.

". . . After two weeks on Broadway he had the chefs running for their lives. He finally went back to Memphis leaving a line of waiters with broken-down arches in his wake, and the impression persists that he went back because he could not get enough to eat in New York."

'TED'S BEST HITTER EVER . . .'

FAN DIMAGGIO SAYS BALL LOOKS BIGGER IN THE STANDS

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

"I believe I could hit .400 against the pitchers of today," baseball fan Joe DiMaggio joked Tuesday night.

Weighing to an ounce (he said) the 195 pounds he retired with in 1951, the trim, 6-2 Yankee Clipper stepped out of his Atlanta hotel dressing room and continued—still grinning:

"That's a fan, not a player, speaking. And believe me, that pitch looks a lot easier from the stands than it does from the batter's box."

The friendly, 44-year-old businessman, outranked in the New York Yankee Hall of Fame only by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, then became serious and said, "baseball is a tougher game today because of player platooning.

"There are not as many .300 hitters; more emphasis seems to be on home runs. And not as many pitchers win 20 games. This is a result of player platooning which, I believe, Casey Stengel introduced at New York.

"I remember when Red Ruffing would give up four runs in the first inning. When we went to the dugout McCarthy (manager Joe) would say, 'that's your bad inning, Red, now go out there next time and start pitching.'

"This is the day of the specialist, though. Every team has its relief artist, and very few pitchers go the complete route. And the more different pitchers you have to face, the more your batting average shrinks."

Remembered best for his record 56-consecutive-game hitting streak, DiMaggio says the Yankee success story can be summed up in one word . . . "organization." (meaning the farm system)

He's surprised—pleasantly—that people still hound him for autographs. "But," he said with a faked frown, "I have one of those kissers nobody could miss."

Tuberculosis Decks Red Schoendienst

Battling Brave 2d Baseman Says He Will Play Again

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Red Schoendienst, second baseman for the Milwaukee Braves, was told Tuesday that he has tuberculosis. But the long-time major league baseball star was quoted by his wife as saying the illness will not end his career.

Dr. Ray Martin, Schoendienst's personal physician, announced that a series of tests performed here indicated beyond doubt that the slim red-haired veteran had tuberculosis.

Red Schoendienst

Dr. Martin added that Schoendienst probably will not be able to play next season.

But Schoendienst's wife, Mary, said he was "in very good spirits and determined to play again. He's a fighter and if he says he'll be all right he will."

She said the family had been gloomy when informed that Red had the disease, but "Red was in such good spirits he cheered us up."

Schoendienst is now in Mount St. Rose Sanitarium in St. Louis in a secluded private room. A nurse said he will be allowed no visitors other than his wife and mother for the next week or 10 days.

The 35-year-old infielder, who led the Braves to the world championship in 1957, has been undergoing a checkup for the past 10 days in a St. Louis hospital. He makes his home here.

Dr. Martin said "it is likely that he might not play next year but we are optimistic about a full recovery."

Mrs. Schoendienst said Red has firmly and repeatedly stated he will be back in the majors since finding out he had TB. "He's always said he would play until he was at least 40 and I believe he will. Red thinks that a man's age doesn't count, it's how he feels."

The frail redhead was bothered periodically in the 1958 season by a finger and wound up hitting only .262, the second poorest mark of his 13-year major league career.

But he was one of the better Brave players in the World Series, where he hit .300 and played excellent defensive ball.

LSU Sitting on Top of AP, UPI

From Press Dispatches

The nation's only undefeated and untied major college football candidate got out another heavy No. 1 vote in wire service polls this week.

Despite its shaky 7-6 escape from Southeastern Conference cellar-dweller Mississippi State, LSU retained a commanding lead in the Associated Press and United Press International ratings.

The Bengals pulled 114 of 183 first place ballots and 1,640 points in the AP system, and claimed 23 of 35 coaches' votes and 309 points in the UPI set-up.

After stretching its unbeaten string to 22 games with a decisive 21-6 whacking of Georgia, Auburn made advances in both polls.

The SEC landed a solid one-two punch in the AP ring when the Plainsmen stepped into the second notch. They are No. 3 by UPI standards.

YALES ASKING OLIVAR FOR 'MORE FOOTBALL'

NEW YORK (AP)—Yale alumni are grumbling about Coach Jordan Olivar's custom of dividing his time between football and his insurance business according to an article by Arch Murray in Tuesday's New York Post.

Murray said a certain segment of the Old Blues is downright mutinous about the situation in the wake of the 50-14 thumping from Princeton last week. He said Olivar spends three months in New Haven and the other nine taking care of his insurance business in Los Angeles.

"He (Olivar) got away with it (dividing his time) while he was winning. That's because a flood of the best material in the league carried him. You don't have to spend too much time teaching the Winterbauers, Lopatas, Wards and McGills. But the green kids like we have this year need that extra time.

"Oh, I know there's no spring practice. But there's nothing to prevent a coach from going over game films with kids during the winter and showing by dint of repetition the mistakes they made and how to correct them."

Auburn's Lorino Draws Equipment for Return to Starters

Warning to Deacs: No. 25's on Ready

Lorino Return Puts Tigers In Best Shape in Weeks

By MICKEY LOGUE

Following his injury in the bruising Tiger-Gator engagement, Lorino has missed the last two games.

He didn't dress for the Mississippi State scrap, but received the okay for punting duty against Georgia. This service was not required, however, as sub Jimmy Pettus supplied the necessary kicking.

Despite missing nearly 2½ games, the 5-8, 165-pound alternate-captain, retains Auburn's second best total rushing figure, gaining 256 yards in 53 carries for a 4.8 average.

He also is the team's No. 1 punter, punt returner and its No. 2 kickoff returner. Though not equipped with exceptional speed, Lorino's elusiveness makes him a constant touchdown threat.

He has scored three touchdowns, two running and one on a pass reception.

Lorino had started 26 straight games before being felled at Florida. After the Georgia encounter got under way, he bombarded Trainer Kenny Howard and Jordan with pleas to play.

"We either had to play him or tie him," Howard said Tuesday, "and the shoulder is ready to go."

Lorino and 10 other seniors attempt to end their career home schedul. undefeated. During their three varsity campaigns, Auburn has lost only three of 28 games and has traveled undefeated in the last 22.

Other seniors include starting ends Jerry Wilson and Mike Simmons, quarterback Lloyd Nix, guard Frank LaRussa and tackle Cleve Wester and second and third stringers center Jimmie Ricketts, guard Don Braswell, halfbacks Laster and Billy Kitchens and tackle Jim Jefferys.

Athletic Director Jeff Beard has designated Saturday's Deacon scrap as "Appreciation Day" for the seniors and their teammates.

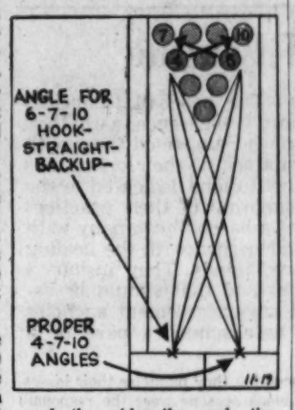
Bowling Clinic

BY BILLY SIXTY

Here's the Proper Angle for Splits

A wise man once said: "There are no hopeless situations; only hopeless men." If so exalted a bit of philosophy may be applied to a sport, the class in splits will come to order.

Even the best bowlers encounter splits—bad ones. In their case it calls for percentage. They must pick up their share to maintain high averages. The lesser bowler may not be able to count on percentage, but he should avoid panic.



Study the angle. By starting from the right you can, with an accurate delivery, slide the No. 4 pin across the alley to knock down No. 10 while the ball takes care of No. 7. The wide angle gives the bowler a better target and a thinner slicing of the pin.

The front pin also must be slid over to pick up the 6-7-10 split on the same sort of angle proposition, in reverse. Whether a hook, reverse or straight ball is used, the wider the angle the less slice is necessary. So the starting position is well to the left.

In either case, turn your body to face the target pin. Keep footwork unhurried. Push-away is unchanged and the grooved arc of the ball close to the body throughout the swing is especially important.

So don't give up on splits. There's an angle to them—a wide one!

Glandular Fever Decks Gridder

Giardello, Webb on TV

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—They're billed Wednesday night's fight between Joey Giardello and Spider Webb as boxer vs. puncher but there's debate on which is which.

In any event, the 28-year-old Giardello from Rosedale, N.Y., rates as favorite to win this 10-round Cow Palace battle between the two high ranking middleweights with a nationwide television audience looking in. A TV black out here has a 300-mile radius.

From the record book, Giardello has stopped 26 foes in 97 fights while Webb bats at a higher percentage with 15 unable to go the distance against him in 33 outings.

The former Olympic boxer who did his college battling at Idaho State now fights out of Chicago.

101 YARDS TO GLORY

Daher's Dash Breaks Wally's GMC Mark

By MAC CHAPLIN

As Georgia Military College's Bulldogs chewed up West Georgia College Saturday, 19-0, a freshman halfback swiveled-hipped his way to stardom.

Johnny Daher, Bulldog right-half, took West Georgia's second half kickoff one-yard inside his own end zone and ran and ran and ran until he deposited the football for six points in the opposite end-zone.

The 101-yard return apparently broke a 98-yard record set by Georgia's Wally Butts when he played at GMC. But since a fire destroyed all the school's athletic records, it cannot be authenticated.

The 175-pound Daher graduated from Southwest High School of Atlanta and was noted for his linebacker play in the City League, before coming to GMC this September.

"Johnny came to us two weeks late," says Coach Lou Cordell, "but he has pushed Robert Walters, our regular back, ever since he put on pads. Saturday night he sparked-plugged both offense and defense from his sideback slot."

Cordell also had plaudits for his Covington quarterback, Larry Laseter and his second-year fullback, Doug Williams from Waycross.

"Both of them scored long TD runs, in the game and have played good consistent ball all year," he said.

CONSTITUTION PREP RANKINGS

STATESBORO NABS TOP SLOT IN 'A'

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Charlie Roberts

Coach Ernest Teel's state defending champions whisked into first place in the Constitution's Class A rankings of Georgia's high school football teams with a sensational 26-21 victory over previously unbeaten Sandersville Saturday night.

That was the big change in the weekly ratings as Glynn Academy, Cairo, Tucker and Hawkinsville — the last three idle—clung to top spots in Classes AAA, AA, B and C. Glynn remained undefeated and won the Region 2-AAA crown with a 10-7 shading of rugged Benedictine.

Changes were few in most classifications, numerous teams being idle, but College Park, Blakely-Union and Washington-Wilkes romped into the "Big Ten" of their own classifications with brilliant efforts. College Park ripped into 10th spot in AA by shelling Hapeville Friday, 18-6, and nipping Fairburn Campbell Monday, 14-13, for a subregion title. Ray Knight's Blakely-Union unit and Charlie Davidson's Washington outfit rammed into the nine, 10 slots in B by slashing Pelham, 37-0, and Royston, 61-7.

LaGrange, in sewing up the 1-AAA crown with that sensational 23-21 shading of Valdosta, continued to breathe on Glynn Academy's neck, the losers tumbling three stairs to sixth. North Fulton bulled into third place with a season-ending 14-12 shading of Murphy, and Northside continued fourth after a 46-7 whipping of West Fulton.

Idle Smyrna Campbell held what it had at fifth, and inactive Moultrie dropped a peg to seventh to make way for Valdosta. Albany, which dumped rejuvenated Lanier, 27-0, and idle Griffin remained eighth and ninth. Brown, 14-13 loser to Sylvan, clung to 10th spot.

Cairo, Avondale, Thomasville, Jesup, Waycross, Rossville and Westminster continued to run in that order in AA. Of those, only Jesup and Rossville, which bumped Dodge County and Cedartown, 40-7 and 16-13, saw action. Gainesville jumped two spots to eighth with a 34-13 mauling of Athens, and Cedartown remained ninth. Crisp County dropped from ranking after a 14-14 tie with Tifton.

Stephens County, 13-6 winner over Toccoa, fell from first to second in A, but Lakeview held third by whipping Model in a region playoff, 14-0. Sandersville sagged two slots to fourth, and Forest Park, tied by Carrollton, 0-0, retained fifth. Summerville, Dublin, Jonesboro and Carrollton, each gained a place to sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth. Summerville, Dublin and Jonesboro thumped Gilmer, 34-0; Baldwin, 54-13, and Fairburn, 14-12. Model tumbled four steps to tenth.

Idle Morgan County continued to run second to Tucker in B, and there were no changes in the next five spots either as Fort Valley, Camden County, Jefferson, Metter and Lyons polished off Warner Robins, 14-7; Folkston, 24-0; Lavonia, 68-0; Bradwell Institute, 32-14, and Reidsville, 20-13. Montgomery County moved ahead a slot to eighth on a 25-13 triumph over Treutlen County. Jenkins County, 12-0 loser to ECI, and idle Perry fell from "Big Ten" status.

Waynesboro and West Point knocked off Warren County and Manchester, 24-0 and 21-14, to retain second and third places in C just ahead of Coosa—tied by Trion, 6-6—and idle Lincolnton. Idle East Fannin edged ahead of beaten Warren County, and the 8-9-10 teams remained the same. Louisville was tied by Tennille, 6-6; Tallapoosa lost to Class B Buchanan, 13-0, and Dade County to Davis, 7-0.

Sylvan, Richmond Academy and Marietta barely failed to make the rankings in AAA. The same was true of Newton County, Newnan, West Rome, Fairburn Campbell, Dalton, Ware County and Bainbridge in AA.

Next in line in A are Commerce and Toccoa. Close, but just out in B, are Mitchell County, Perry, Jenkins County, Hogansville, Sylvester, Claxton, Clarkston, Bowdon, Buchanan and Villa Rica. In C it's Davis, Chattanooga Valley, Tennille, Putnam County.

Tech's Eight Seniors Plan Fierce Bulldog Farewell

Andel Okays Nix for Play

By BERT PRATHER

It goes without saying that every last one of Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets will be doing his dead-level best to knock off traditional rival Georgia a week from Saturday.

But eight of them have an extra special reason to give it a bit more than their all. They're the eight seniors who will be taking their last cracks at the Bulldogs.

Coach Bobby Dodd said that remainder of Georgia Tech's Rose Bowl field practice sessions will be closed to everyone except the press and parents of players.

Heading this group, quite naturally, is Foster Watkins, the Jacket captain and left guard.

For the Columbus native, it will be his third game against the Athenians. He played behind all-America center Duck Stephenson and Buck Wiley in 1956 at Sanford Stadium when the Jackets won 35-0. Last year Foster was a starter at guard when the Bulldogs ended an eight-year losing string in this classic with a 7-0 victory.

FOSTER WATKINS
Bulldogs Last Target

As leader of the troops this time, Foster will be going for broke to end his collegiate career on a winning note.

Kicking ace Joe DeLany is another in this group who is hoping to have a hand in a Jacket victory at Athenstown.

Joe's action against the Bulldogs has been very limited. The Atlantan's only previous shot was in 1956 when he was in for just a few plays. Last year he was out with a broken collarbone.

He's now nursing a sprained left ankle, suffered in the 'Bama game, but is confident he will be healed and ready by Nov. 29. Joe wants to get a chance to kick with Bulldog Bobby Walden who is the nation's top punter. Joe is the No. 2 man.

Lasch, Thomas, Green and Rose are veterans of two Bulldog encounters each, while Baum and Robison have yet to see action in this traditional game. Thomas and Green started last year's game, while Rose, who was held out a year, was a starter in '55.

Sophomore right halfback Frank Nix, who suffered a bruised tendon on third play against Alabama Saturday and was at first believed lost for the Georgia battle, has shown so much improvement during the past three days that trainer Buck Andel now believes he'll be available for action.

"He has 10 days in which to get well, and I think he will make it," Andel said Tuesday.

With the possibility of Nix being back in action, Dodd said, "If Frank is able to play, then we'll probably move James back to left halfback. I don't know about Lewis yet, but we may just keep him at the halfback spot."

In the preliminary, at 2:15, the Sinclair girls will meet the Tomboys.

Garlington's 10 Birdies Key Record-Shattering 64 Round

Peachtreer Fires 32-32

T. R. (Dick) Garlington Sr., who is better known nationally as golf official than a golfer, shot the most amazing round of his life Tuesday afternoon at Peachtree Club's championship layout.

Dick Garlington

Playing in a threesome with Bob Woodruff and J. Harvey Irwin, Dick shot an eight under par 32-32-64 to shatter the long standing course record by four strokes.

But what is even more remarkable is that his card showed 10 birdies—five on each side. He bogied one hole on each nine.

The Card:
Par out	454	353	444-36
Garlington out	344	244	434-32
Garlington in	424	324	434-32-32-64

Garlington, former president and chairman of board of Atlanta Athletic Club and until two years ago a member of United States Golf Association executive committee, had only 27 putts, 13 on the front and 14 on the back nine.

He birdied the first two holes, holing a three footer on one for his three and getting down in two from 20 feet for his four on the long second. Dick missed a three foot birdie putt on the par four third, then knocked it up one foot from the cup on four and five to get his birdie deuce and birdie four.

His only bogey on this nine came on six when he was short with a four-iron on this long par three. He picked up another bird on eight, sinking from six feet for a three.

Dick started the back nine with a birdie on the par five tenth, hitting his second 10 feet from the flag and rolling it down in two. On 11, a par three, Garlington sank from six feet for his deuce.

After knocking an eight iron over to take a bogey five 13, he came right back to sink an eight-foot putt for deuce on No. 14 and collected his 10th bird of the round on the long 16th by sinking from eight feet.

He was playing from the middle tees, which means the yardage was approximately 6,669. Former Peachtree pro Jim Dunkerley fired the 68 from the long markers.

Garlington, who is now two years in golf's senior clasisfition, has long been a topflight player, though his tournament appearances in recent years have been few and far between. He teamed with former British Amateur champ Charley Yates to capture the first Southern fourball in 1937 defeating the Louisiana team of Fred Haas and Edwin McClure.

Eight-Year-Old Throws Strikes, But Can't 'Fill' Bowling Shoes

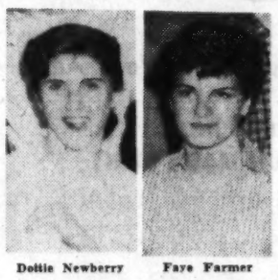
By PAUL ATKINSON

They're growing Atlanta's bowlers young.

"Why we've got a kid in our bantam program," Junior Bowling Congress representative Sam Holt was saying Tuesday night, "so little we can't get shoes to fit him. He's only eight, but he throws the prettiest ball you'll want to see. Kid's name is Jimmy Smith and he's only eight."

Paul Atkinson

That's typical of the junior bowling program found both at O'Neil's Bowlerama and the Bowl-O-Matic Lanes every Saturday at 9:30 a.m. Holt leads the O'Neill group while Henry Land and Joe Pecora handle Bowl-O-Matic. Lucky Strike also has a program working with the junior duckpinners.



Dottie Newberry — Faye Farmer

What's the most difficult thing to teach a young bowler?" Holt repeated a question. "I would say it's the approach. Of course, you look around and you'll see some of the older people having the same trouble."

Some of the city's more promising youngsters? "Take a look at this scoreboard," Holt said, pointing to the American Legion Post 72 sheet. "Dick Gray and Dale Polzin have high scores among the boys while Faye Farmer and Dottie Newberry have consistently been scoring high for the girls.

"Then in your other leagues, Robert Lee, Allan Nix and Patty Ryan have been good scorers.

"Let me put in an appeal for more older people to help us out on Saturdays. We need, especially, scorekeepers."

TENPIN ALLEY — O'Neil's Bowlerama edged Bowl-O-Matic Lanes by 130 pins in a charity match over the weekend rolled at each establishment. Oddly, O'Neil's team took four games at Bowl-O-Matic, while the procedure was exactly reversed at O'Neil's. Sam O'Neil Jr., had a 224-204-188-176—792 at Bowl-O-Matic, went 225-213-162-169—769 at Bowlerama. Rick Lux had an 861 for Bowl-O-Matic, 237-225-205, included. Hal Evans' 244 was the highest game. . . . Luck or skill dept.: Don Crawley of the J. C. League picked up a 7-9 split Thursday at Bowl-O-Matic. . . . New Leagues in town: Broadview Mixed, an eight-teamer, which has Marshall Spruill's 565 best; B'nai B'rith, a 10-team women's league Tuesday afternoons. . . . And another forming—North Fulton High School in the process of forming a league, with hopes that Northside will join in a roll-off later. Could be the beginning of a prep bowling league, something needed here.

SCOREBOARDING: Lee Dale's 175 average best in Sinclair SE division, while Mailers' 16-8 tops league and Dinosaurs second at 15-9. . . . Mead-APACO Whites fired brilliant 1,033 scratch (1,163 handicap) last Monday. Individually, it was Earl Winkle, 228; Hugh Fahey, 227; Ken Kohler, 200; Bill Byars, 188, and Frank Jaborsky, 190 . . . Doris Spencer's 161 leading in Broadview Bowlerette, Campbell's Drive-In teamwise . . . Hal Weiner's 173 atop the average heap for Broadview Tenpinners. J. C. Strickland and Mack Trucks tied at 21-11 . . . Beef has no beef in the Armour Men's Social League. Beef leads with a 19-11 report while Miss Wisconsin Cheese is second at 18-12. Billy Couch's 173 individually sparkles . . . Crum & Forester Blues leading Atlanta Insurance Bowling League along with Maryland Casualty, both at 24-8. Al DeWick's 175.53 and Jim Heisler's 175.08 individual stickouts. . . . Bill Hoskins, city policeman, policed the lanes Tuesday night for a 210-236-217—663 at Bowl-O-Matic.

DUCKPINNING: Big news, of course, is Southeastern Doubles Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Lucky Strike Lanes. They'll have men's open doubles, mixed handicap doubles, and women's handicap doubles.

Morehouse, Fisk Tangle On Saturday

By HERMAN SCOTT

Contributing to Morehouse offensive maneuvers will be Captain Thomas Johnson, Clinton Ransaw, Alfonso Crutch, Jennings Coleman, Benjamin Blackburn and little Thomas Arnold, also an outstanding punter.

Linemen scheduled to clear the way are Johnny Powell, Johnny Smith, Robert Stone, Ike Parker, Herman Scott III, George Lester and Gilbert Turman.

Morehouse carries a 2-4-1 record into the season's finale for both teams, the Maroon Tigers having defeated Alabama A&M and Knoxville College.

Leash Law Adopted In Decatur

Comissioners Crackdown

By WARREN BOSWORTH

Decatur's City Commission approved a strong leash law Tuesday night as a possible solution to the city's increasing dog problem.

The new law makes it mandatory for dog owners to keep their animals "confined or penned" and not allow them to roam except on a leash.

All dogs running loose will be impounded in the DeKalb County dog pound and the owners failing to comply will be served charges.

The commissioners said they intend to see that the law is enforced.

The provisions were written into the city's dog law in 1949 and then were stricken before the code was officially adopted.

The commission also approved the voters' registration list for the city elections to be held Dec. 3. The purging committee appointed to purge the registration list announced that 5,559 voters are qualifed to vote in the election, an increase of approximately 150 over the last election.

JOLLY GOOD SHOW

Queen's Guards, Pipers Thrill 6,500 Atlantans

By RICHARD E. GRAY

Jolly good show, gentlemen!

You Scots Guards and Grenadier Guards can come marching and playing your pipes and drums in Atlanta any time your hearts so desire.

More than 6,500 excitement-seeking people overflowed the Georgia Tech Coliseum here Tuesday night, and were treated to a breath-taking display of marching, maneuvering and music.

All this came wrapped up in the pomp, pageantry and precision for which these two fine, old British military outfits are noted throughout the world.

"AULD LANG SYNE"

From the first note of the opening trumpet fanfare until the last strains of "Auld Lang Syne," it was an excellent show.

Not only were the formations flawlessly executed, and the marching itself near-perfect, but the music was real music—and there are relatively few military bands in existence that can accomplish this.

At intermission, the visitors did much to strengthen Anglo-American relations—mingling with the audience, signing autographs and telling small boys and not-so-small girls how the bagpipes work.

Highlights of the evening:

Stirring renditions of the Star Spangled Banner and God Save the Queen. The preliminary, wild squeal of the pipes each time they surged up the ramp and out on the floor. The eight dancers, all of them quite young and only two of whom had ever danced before joining the Guards.

LARGE CIRCLE

The band's two concert sequences, done from a large circle with the drum section and director (Major F. J. Harris, M.B.S., A.R.C.M.) in the center. They included a musically excellent and exciting rendition of "Introduction to Act III" from Lohengrin, a loudly-applauded medley from "My Fair Lady." "Seventy-six Trombones" from "The Music Man," Leroy Anderson's "Bugler's Holiday" starring the trumpet section, "Trombones to the Fore," in which the six trombonists marched as they soloed and an agile xylophone solo.

The traditional quick marches, slow marches, kilts, tartans and high black shakos gave — as was expected — a stimulating glow of British spirit and tradition to the whole performance.

Negro Actress Is Wed to Socialite By Rep. Powell in N.Y. Ceremony

NEW YORK (AP)—A friend disclosed Tuesday the interracial marriage of Negro entertanier Josephine Premice and Timothy Fales, son of a socially prominent New York family. She currently is on Broadway.

The wedding took place last Friday in Miss Premice's Greenwich Village apartment. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, Baptist minister and Harlem's Democratic congressman.

Miss Premice declined to say whether the bridegroom's family had objected to the marriage. Fales' mother said the news of the wedding was a surprise to her and added:

"I don't think it is true, but I don't know anything about it."

Fales is the son of Decoursey Fales, chairman of the board of the Bank for Savings. The family is in the Social Register.

Fales was divorced in Mexico last September by his first wife, Ellen Woed, a model.

Reds Resume Island Shelling

Nationalist defense spokesmen said 27 shells were fired between midnight and dawn and that intermittent shelling was continuing.

On Quemoy, a back-to-school movement began Tuesday.

Marriage on Rocks, He Tries Suicide And She Offers Rings to Bail Him Out

NEW YORK (AP)—Married at 17. Now they're 23. She went home to her mother with the two kids months ago. But they still run a diner together, working side by side 16 hours a day.

Monday he ran his car into a light pole to save her the trouble of getting a divorce. Car demolished. Light pole snapped off. He was unhurt.

"I tried to kill myself," he said as she ran up to the wreckage.

STUPID JERK

"You stupid jerk," she said, slapping his face.

Police came, arrested him on a malicious mischief charge. Tuesday in Bronx Magistrate's Court she offered her engagement and wedding rings to bail him out of jail. But she still wants a divorce.

That, in brief, is the mixed-up saga of Arnold and Rene Seigal of the Bronx. It all came out in court.

RAMMED POLE

He put the car into gear and rammed the nearest light pole. Down it came and because of crossed wires a fire engine soon arrived.

That brought the malicious mischief charge. There also was some trouble about the license plates. He had borrowed them from his wife's car to put on his own, without changing the registration.

The court declined the wife's jewelry as bond, deciding their luncheonette was enough security. Seigal was released pending trial.

SHE WANTED

Later in his attorney's office Mrs. Seigal said she wanted a husband more financially secure than Seigal.

"I'll support my own children," Seigal said. "No other man will do that."

"You can't even buy a pack of cigarettes," his wife said.

Then they complied willingly when photographers asked them to pose kissing each other.

As I See It

It's Now or Never For Uncle Miltie

By PAUL JONES

Milton Berle will have a wonderful opportunity to redeem himself with his millions of fans tonight.

As you probably know, Uncle Miltie hasn't been his old self this season. He returned to the network amid a fanfare fit for a returning war hero. But, in his first outing he was a collosal flop.

Since his first show, he has managed to be very un-funny most of the time, pulling old chestnuts out of the trash heap of tired, corny humor. Only once has he come up with a show with any sparkle at all. That was the show in which Gary Crosby was featured.

Jones

Being a Berle fan, I have stuck my neck out time and time again to recommend his show. But, alas, I must admit that Mr. B. hasn't even entertained me. And I'm on his side.

The blue chips will be down for Berle tonight, though. Unless he comes up with a good show I'm going to drop him off my list of must-see events on TV. And I am sure that there are millions of other Berle fans who feel the same way.

I know that you can line up the biggest array of guest talent in the world and then stage one of the lousiest shows ever presented. But, for the life of me, I don't see how Miltie can fail tonight. For here are some of the people who will be on the same stage with him between 9 and 9:30 p.m. on NBC-TV and Channel 2:

Red Skelton, who is reputed to be one of the greatest clowns in show business and a fellow who should be able to match Berle lick for lick.

The Kingston Trio, which currently has the best-seller tune, "Tom Dooley" going for them.

SKELTON, as Clem Kadiddlehopper, will team with Berle, Miss Nichols and Charles Irving in a sketch about a recording company's frantic search for a "new sound." Berle plays Barney Bigmouth, a talent agent peddling Kadiddlehopper as the man with the "new sound."

Irving portrays the company executive. And Miss Nichols will play the part of his receptionist.

If it doesn't come off with considerable humor during the Berle show tonight, so help me, I gonna file Berle's name with the also-rans.

How about you?

WAGON TRAIN, the only thing that looks like the epic hoss operas of the cinema, certainly had its share of the big talent last season and again during this semester. But, I rate the guest star in tonight's episode—a fellow named Chill Wills—as one of the most versatile stars they've ever presented.

Chill, to the best of my knowledge, is the only man who ever played the part of a jackass on the screen. He was the "voice" of the fabulously funny "Francis, the Talking Mule" movies which were so popular several years ago.

He has played in drawing-room drama, such as "Her Cardboard Lover," he has appeared in at least one "Tarzan" film and a number of good westerns.

I'll bet he steals every scene in which he is featured tonight.

MRS. C. SWINT of Atlanta writes: "In answer to Mrs. R. M. Wade, I am not one who thinks that anyone who hails from Georgia, and especially Atlanta and who happens to be in show business and who also appears on television, is just absolutely out of this world and that they are beyond reproach.

"But, I must say . . . that the majority of Atlantans are very proud indeed of Mr. Bert Parks. He has a wonderful personality . . . He is a natural. To me, he makes a program. I have seen him pick up the pieces of a perfectly horrid show with his wonderful smile and his complete poise and, of course, his great talent. I feel very proud of Bert Parks and I'll bet there are millions who will back me up."

Bert Parks

I think most television fans will agree that Bert is a personable fellow who does a bang-up job. He certainly is proud to call Atlanta his home and his many references to this on network television have not done our town any harm.

STAR IN DRAMA TONIGHT—Jeffrey Hunter and Myron McCormick portray Air Force officers who come to know Italian-born Maria, portrayed by Margaret O'Brien, when an airman is murdered at an air base near a contemporary American town, in "Kiss Me Again, Stranger," on Pursuit, on CBS-Television and Channel 5 at 8 tonight.

Wagon Train Scores As Choice Western

PAUL JONES' PICK OF THE DAY—I have contended from the start that Wagon Train is one of the best westerns on television and I have some facts to prove it is one of the most popular. The latest surveys all place it in either the No. 1 or the No. 2 spot.

If you haven't seen this epic story of the Old West, try it on for size tonight when Chill Wills, portraying a bearded and weirdly-dressed renegade scout, is special guest with regulars Ward Bond and Robert Horton. The show is titled "The Bije Wilcox Story."

Princess Grace Expecting Twins

By SHEILAH GRAHAM
North American Newspaper Alliance

HOLLYWOOD — The talk in Monaco is that not only is Grace Kelly expecting again, but the famed gynecologist who recently visited her anticipates twins. There will be a lot of cannon firing if this comes true!

Natalie Wood, wearing yellow with orange-stripe Capri pants, stopped authoress Rona Jaffe at 20th-Fox Monday to tell her, "I loved your book, 'The Best of Everything,' and I'd like to play Gregg or April." . . . I asked Miss Jaffe the title of her next book. "It's a secret," she replied. I'll bet producer Jerry Wald finds out about it before she leaves. . . . Robert Wagner joined us for a minute and disclosed he was rehearsing singing and dancing for Tony Quinn, who has grayed his hair for "Warlock." . . . "I might keep it gray; I'm more successful," he said. Tony goes back to directing next, this time Metro's "Company of Cowards."

Sheilah Graham

The Laurence Oliviers took over the famed Milroy Club in London to toss a swank soiree for 150 top-drawer folk, all for Lauren Bacall. There was turkey, preceded by borscht, and coupe Alaska.

Elia Kazan and Bette Davis are talking a movie deal. . . . The censors killed half the Marilyn Monroe stills for "Some Like It Hot." . . . Philip Crosby and his bride have bought a house in Brentwood. Brother Dennis and wife Pat move into their new Laurel Canyon home next week.

Ernest Borgnine is taking a slow boat to Australia for his "Summer of the 17th Doll" film and he won't be back here until February. Katy Jurado, the girl he's expected to marry when his divorce is final, is in the Marlon Brando picture and does not plan to fly to see Borgnine. Shortly after his return here, Ernie has to leave to do a movie in Munich. At least the separation will give them a chance to know if they're really in love.

Job Procedure Study Catches On

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Lowell P. Weicker, president of Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co., is apparently neither the first nor the only one who thinks college students need be taught something about the procedures for landing a job.

It was Weicker who suggested the need for a "job procedures" course when he spoke at last week's meeting of the Emory University School of Business Administration alumni.

Jim Montgomery

Reaction to the story on his comments included a letter from Dr. James E. Gates, dean of the University of Georgia's College of Business Administration.

He "found it most interesting," he said, "especially that part about the disirability of having a job procedure course, designed to help the student as he goes to look for his post-graduate employment."

Dean Gates adds, "We've had a course like this, at the University of Georgia, for the past 10 years.

"Frankly we copied it from one similar at Indiana University, and I think that they got it from Ohio State. Who started the thing I don't know."

He also indicated that the idea is spreading around, which should please a number of businessmen.

"To make it possible for other universities to get into the act, and many are doing just that," he wrote, "Harold Miller of Loyola University and I put together a book entitled Personal Adjustment to Business . . . which was released in January, 1958.

"Among the things which we claim to do, as stated on the dust jacket, are the following:

" 'It lays out the practical steps essential to planning your career intelligently, finding a position in your chosen career, moving successfully on the job. It effectively serves you as a bridge into the business world.' "

Then, with admirable candor, Dean Gates said:

"Whether it does all of these things we are not quite sure, but we are certainly in there trying to do them."

Certainly, as long as people like businessman Weicker and educator Gates are concerned enough to try to do something about teaching job procedures, the students' transition from carefree campus to cold, cruel world should become smoother.

Edison operates Chandlers Shoe Store.

Probes Menace Firms, Oil Executive Says

Antitrust suits and "an increasing flood of Congressional inquisitions" are threatening efforts of the oil industry to meet the nation's increasing oil needs, the head of a major oil company warned here Tuesday.

Sinclair Refining Co. President T. B. Kimball told the Atlanta Kiwanis Club:

"The favorable political and economic climate so essential to any industry is currently disintegrating at a rapid rate—both at home and abroad."

Kimball said experts had predicted that by 1980 the United States will require some 17 million barrels of oil a day—double today's needs.

"Such a rate of consumption would exhaust our present domestic oil reserves in less than six years," he declared. He said oil imports must increase, but not at a rate that would discourage exploratory and development drilling in this country. He told Kiwanians that searching for and developing oil resources at home and abroad will require capital investments in "truly staggering amounts."

Kimball warned that foreign "tension and turmoil . . . bode ill for the world's future oil supply" and urged that Americans "exert proper influence in these areas by our international conduct and by our government following a consistent foreign policy."

The Sinclair president also urged businessmen to work actively to develop "a proper political climate" and to "secure among people generally a better understanding of the role of private enterprise in our nation."

Marietta Company Wins Nike Contract

Blair Aluminum Furniture Co. of Marietta has been awarded contracts in excess of $97,000 to manufacture a special type of chairs for the NIKE guided missile system.

The missile is guided from a portable control trailer, Georgia firm spokesmen explained, and operators sit on chairs designed and developed by Blair so that chairs are locked to the floor while the trailer is in transit.

A Blair official reported his firm has been furnishing such chairs for eight years to Douglas Aircraft Corp. and Western Electric Co. It had been announced earlier that several NIKE centers will be set up in Georgia. The NIKE, one of the nation's basic weapons of anti-aircraft defense, guards approaches to cities, industrial areas and military installations.

Executives Expect '59 Sales Climb

NEW YORK (AP)—Looking ahead to sales prospects for the first quarter of 1959, business executives are more optimistic than at any time in the past three years, a Dun & Bradstreet Inc. survey showed.

Of 1,548 executives polled, 72 per cent forecast higher sales in January, February and March than in the first three months of 1958. Only four per cent predicted declines.

This overwhelming belief that sales will be up in the first 1959 quarter reflects a more optimistic viewpoint than Dun & Bradstreet has uncovered since late 1955.

STEADILY UPWARD

"During the current questioning," the business reporting service said, "businessmen were cheered by numerous reports that over-all business activity was moving upward steadily from the recession low of last April."

Retailers were particularly hopeful of beating their year-ago sales figures.

"A larger proportion of retailers expected year-to-year sales gains in 1959's first quarter than in any other major classification," Dun & Bradstreet said. "Three months ago this was the least optimistic of the groups polled."

Among manufacturers optimists outnumbered pessimists 14 to 1.

LESS CHEERFUL

Executives were less cheerful on the possibility of a profits upturn. Slightly less than half forecast higher profits than a year ago while 45 per cent said they expcted no change from the first 1958 quarter. The "up's" were found most frequently among manufacturers of durable goods and least often among retail merchants.

The great majority expect to hold selling prices just about where they were in the first three months this year. Twenty-four per cent said they expected to raise their prices. This compares with only 17 per cent who expressed that intention in the survey last year.

Kodak Splits $40 Million

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Eastman Kodak Co. Tuesday declared a $40,200,000 wage dividend to be shared by more than 49,000 employes in the United States. The dividend is payable March 17.

Eligible employes will receive $32.625 for each $1,000 earned in 1954 to 1958. About $37,500,000 was paid last March at a rate of $32 for each $1,000 earned in the previous five years.

Kodak today also declared a quarterly cash dividend of 65 cents and an extra 25 cents per share of common, plus the regular 1½ per cent or $1.50 on preferred.

Both dividends are payable Jan. 2, 1959 to shareowners of record Dec. 5, 1958. They are the same as paid in the last quarter of 1957 but total common payments this year were $2.85 compared with $2.70 last year.

Profits Set Mart Back Off Peak

Correction Is Called Due; Favorites Soften Losses

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market's latest rise to record highs was clipped by profit taking. Aircrafts bucked the trend with sizable gains.

Losses of fractions to about a point were prevalent among key stocks.

Gains among aircrafts and selected favorites ran to 2 or 3 points. This softened the overall loss which was moderate.

A correction was due again, brokers said, in view of the surge to record peaks on five of the six prior sessions. The over-all business news was not quite as optimistic as heretofore.

A downward trend widened and made the market definitely lower before the morning was half gone. In the afternoon renewed buying interest cut many losses and put some stocks well ahead.

Brokers said National Distillers and General Tire broke through an overhead resistance point in their price charts and drew a considerable following. General Instrument has had a big rise and was due for profit taking.

Eastman Kodak was on the upside early in the day but plummeted as much as 8¼ points after a dividend meeting brought nothing unusual in the way of stockholder benefits. The stock recovered somewhat.

Which stocks should I buy?
Which stocks should I sell?
Market up — or market down — investors ask us those questions every day.
And market up — or market down — they get the very best answers we can give them.
Never the same answers, of course.
Because a good stock for you could be a poor choice for someone else.
Because no two investment situations are ever exactly alike . . .
Because the best answer for you will always depend on your own current circumstances and present state of the market . . . on the risks you can afford and the rewards you seek . . . on the stocks you own now, the prices you paid, and your reasons for buying them.
If you're wondering which stocks — if any — you should buy or sell yourself . . .
If you'll take time enough to tell us something about your own situation — your present holdings, your investment objectives — we'll take all the time necessary to prepare the most helpful answer we can about which stocks you should buy or sell.
There's no charge for that answer either. Simply address a confidential letter to —

Grain Mart Falls Back

CHICAGO (AP)—Still lacking any strong commercial influences, the grain futures market fell back into narrow price ranges again on the Board of Trade.

Corn and soybeans, due to colder weather and lighter cash supplies, receipts moved slightly ahead, but other grains failed to attract much interest and were mostly steady to weak.

Wheat finished ⅛-⅝ cent a bushel lower, December, $1.96½-⅝; corn, ⅛-½ higher, December, old type contract, $1.14⅝; oats, unchanged to 1⅞ higher, December, 65⅜; rye, ⅞ lower to ¼ higher, December, $1.31¼-⅜; soybeans, unchanged to ⅜ higher, November, $2.13¾-14¼.

The trade noted a report by the Department of Agriculture that wheat shipments through the government export subsidy program so far this crop year—since July 1—are well ahead of a year ago.

Lint Mart Unsettled

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures broke out of their narrow trading range as increased liquidation in nearby December unsettled the market. Final prices were 10 cents to $1.10 a bale lower.

Widest losses were in current crop deliveries where New Orleans selling was also extensive. The December selling reflected the approach of first notice day, Friday. The December open interest at the start totaled 128,300 bales, which is fairly large for this trading cycle, dealers noted.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service estimated October domestic consumption at 850,000 bales. Indicated consumption for the first 13 weeks of the crop season approximated 2,137,000 bales against 2,145,000 in the like period a year earlier.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The cotton textile market was less active Tuesday. Heavy buying late last week appeared to have satisfied converter requirements for the time being.

Some mills also quoted prices higher than converters were willing to pay. The popular 80-square print cloth sold at 17½ cents a yard for average makes on spot, up ⅛ cent, with several sellers now asking 18 cents.

The wool goods market was slow. Australian wool markets were steady, according to private reports.

Naval Stores

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 18 (AP)—(USDA)—Rosin: Trading slowed following increased activity of the past two market days. Sales totaled 2 carlots. Sales, f.o.b. plants: Drums, WW 7.00; WG 6.40; N 6.05.
